Where's Chester? —Hanoi

LONDON (CP) — Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, indicated Thursday that North Vietnam has inquired about the whereabouts of Chester Ronning, Canadian diplomat who has carried Canadian messages to Hanoi in the past.

Martin said in an interview that Ronning, a Southeast Asia expert who now is retired, is ready to go to Hanoi immediately if there is any indication North Vietnam wants to talk about peace.

Martin said there has been no official reply from Hanoi to proposals for stopping the Vietnam war made by U. Thant, United Nations secretary-general.

REPLY RECEIVED

He said North Vietnam probably would neither accept nor reject Thant's suggestions — at least for the present — but there had been an inquiry as to the whereabouts of Ronning.

A UN spokesman Wednesday night said Thant did receive a reply from Hanoi but declined to say what was in it. Diplomatic sources said Thursday that North Vietnam rejected Thant's proposals.

Ronning went to Hanoi with a Canadian proposal last year. Martin is here for discussions with Commonwealth leaders.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General U. Thant "will continue his efforts" for peace in Vietnam, a UN spokesman said Wednesday.

The informant gave that reply at a briefing for correspondents.

Grenadier Robber A Woman

SEATTLE (UPI) — A frail young woman armed with a hand grenade robbed the Green Lake branch of the Seattle Trust and Savings Bank Thursday.

She escaped in a late model sedan with an undetermined amount of money.

Employees said the woman, about 24, showed a teller a hand grenade and said she also had a pistol in a shoulder holster.

Crisis Over Plot Topples Cabinet

Paraskevopoulos

ATHENS (UPI) — Premier John Paraskevopoulos submitted the resignation of his caretaker government to King Constantine Thursday in a political crisis stemming from an abortive plot to overthrow the monarchy.

The king was expected to ask the leader of the conservative National Radical Union party (ERE), Panayiotis Canellopoulos, to form a new government.

The government was brought to the brink of collapse when the ERE said it would withdraw its support from Paraskevopoulos if the government approved an electoral law amendment that would grant immunity to former premier George Papandreu and his son Andreas for any links with the Aspidi (Shield) organization that allegedly plotted to overthrow the king.

London Betting On Michener

OTTAWA (CP) — It seems certain now that Prime Minister Pearson will announce the name of Canada's new governor-general next Tuesday in the Commons.

At a news conference Tuesday, he indicated an announcement next week on a successor to Gen. George Vanier, who died March 5 after 7½ years in the vice-regal post.

Roland Michener, now Canadian high commissioner to India, emerged in diplomatic speculation in London Thursday night as most likely to become Canada's next governor-general. One experienced diplomatic informant said "nothing can be 100-per-cent sure in this world" but it would be a good bet that the former speaker of the House of Commons will be named.

Fire Ruins Landmark

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — A hotel fire in the heart of this mountain resort community early today threatened an adjacent theatre, forced evacuation of another hotel, and prompted fears it might spread to an entire business block.

The fire destroyed a three-storey, 40-unit frame wing of the Mount Royal Hotel.

Escalation or Warning?

U.S. TEARS UP RED AIRFIELD

By TED SELL

WASHINGTON (LAT) — American planes have attacked Communist North Vietnam's newest jet fighter airfield in the first raid of its kind in the war.

According to information available here, the attack nine days ago by a Navy A-6 Intruder struck a new field at Bai Thuong, 80 miles southwest of Hanoi.

Intelligence officers estimated that in another week, the field would have been ready to receive a complement of Soviet-built MiG jet fighters.

So far, Communist airfields sheltering MIGs have been immune from U.S. attack under rules which most air force commanders consider overly restrictive. The Pentagon never has said why such fields have been off-limits.

CRATER FIELD

No MIGs were at the field when it was attacked. The raid was intended to crater the airfield before it was put to use.

U.S. planes have attacked small air strips throughout North Vietnam since air raids on the north started in 1965. In most cases, the raids hit at dirt strips and fields which MIGs were not expected to use.

Bai Thuong was a brand new field, and apparently was intended from the first as MIG base.

'INTERESTING'

Pentagon officials declined to call the raid escalation of the U.S. air war. But officers described the move as "interesting" and indicated it should serve as a warning to Hanoi on basing MIGs at new fields.

Existing MIG fields cluster around the Hanoi and Haiphong areas. Use of Bai Thuong would have placed MIG interceptors at short range to U.S. planes using 100-per-cent sure in this world" but it would be a good bet that the former speaker of the House of Commons will be named.

Danish Expert Doubts U.K. Efforts

Oil Fight Handled 'in Panic'

LANDSKRONA, Sweden (UPI) — A Danish oil expert charged Thursday Britain "panicked" in its handling of the tanker Torrey Canyon oil disaster and that the oil will come back to haunt it for many years. (See also Page 6.)

Paul Jodehl, manager of an oil control firm here, said Britain panicked and used ill-advised methods to destroy the 118,000 tons of oil surging towards its resort beaches.

The British "are being led to use chemicals that merely bind the oil for a month or two," he said. "They are trying to destroy the oil through emulsion with oil-plus-paraffin products, but it is an impossible task."

Jodehl said the emulsion will drain off in a short time and the oil will appear once again with "tremendous consequences" for many years to come for the fishing life and fauna.

He also doubted that the three-day bombardment of the tanker had succeeded in burning out the remaining oil "because of the lack of oxygen inside the tanker."

Jodehl, who has acted as an oil-control consultant for the Finnish government, offered his own method to fight the drifting oil off the British coastline.

"First encircle the oil with bars and rafts. Then either spray the masses and wait for the oil to sink to the bottom as small sand grains with no damage caused to the fish or fauna. Or tow the oil into suitable waters and then pump it into carriers and take it away."

The newspaper said the spokesman was "unwilling to answer the question whether the Chinese Embassy in Jakarta was behind the trouble."

The Communist party in Indonesia was outlawed following the unsuccessful coup of 1965 which was reported to have had the backing of China.

There are about 1,000,000 Chinese in Indonesia.

Jakarta Chinese Held in Red Plot

JAKARTA (UPI) — Indonesian military authorities were reported Friday to have arrested several prominent Chinese businessmen on charges of financing the Communist underground and plotting to incite opposition to the government.

The army newspaper Armed Forces Daily quoted a spokesman for the Jakarta military garrison as saying that the unrest in East Java was apparently organized and financed from Jakarta, "possibly with aid from outside."

TV Strike Spreading

From LAT

A strike against major television and radio networks spread Thursday as more unions stayed off the job or prepared to do so in observance of picket lines.

They included cameramen and engineers whose absence could further restrict live programming.

At the same time, two well-known TV newsmen faced expulsion from their union for defiance of picket lines.

Chet Huntley and Frank McGee, both of NBC, apparently were the only top network figures to cross picket lines of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

Cameramen, Engineers Stay Away

CBS newscaster Maury Green voiced the general resentment against Huntley. "Either Huntley is through as a newscaster or AFTRA is finished as far as newsmen go."

The union can expel Huntley for refusing to respect its picket lines. But expulsion from the union is not grounds for dismissing him from NBC.

Meanwhile, Herb Allen, head of the AFL-CIO Cameramen's Union in Los Angeles, said he will fly to New York for a meeting Sunday with Richard Walsh, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees, to "get full support for our brother unionists in this strike."

Allen said the cameramen's union, an IATSE affiliate, had a membership meeting Wednesday night, "and everyone

Gift Horse Raises Committee Heads

THAT GIFT: It was quite a council session at Esquimalt this week. All went well until Com. J. W. Bell got into an item on the agenda that reads: "Statement of Revenue and Expenditure." That did it.

After a few words, Mr. Bell said he objected to the statement as it stood and then that old Gift Horse reared its head.

At 10 p.m. Tuesday the council moved into committee, or what amounts to secret session, and discussed the gift to Reeve Ray Bryant's father of $468. James Bryant was defeated last December when he ran for council.

Mr. Bell asked during the committee meeting that council get a legal opinion on the gift, but after a few short, sharp, heated words he could not get a second for his motion.

Word from the meeting is that the money was spent as follows: $400 as a cash gift to the rejected candidate, $10 for flowers and $58 for a private party following the public hoopla at the Sports Centre.

The session lasted until midnight, but at least it was decided that in future there will be no more lavish cash gifts.

Reeve Bryant is reported to have reserved judgment on the matter, as he expects that a few more senior municipal officials will be offering their resignations soon.

FUN IN STORE: It's not all wine and roses in the store business, nor all fun and profit, either. Take Thursday, for example.

A woman customer bustled into one food emporium and said she wanted to grind a packet of coffee beans. Despite the fact that the beans were of a variety sold only in a different chain the clerk gave the garrulous gal the nod.

Well, so what? No sooner had the beans gone through the machine than the woman whipped out a bottle of cocktail essence and asked for a refund on it.

After a few words it transpired that the juice was bought by the woman before Christmas.

She was still waiting for a decision from the management when our informant left the store.

THE DENIAL: University of Victoria Chancellor R. B. Wilson has issued the following statement which speaks for itself.

"The rumor appearing in Thursday's Colonist that Dr. Malcolm Taylor had tendered his resignation as president of the University of Victoria to the board of governors is entirely false.

"Further, the board wishes at this time to affirm its highest confidence in Dr. Taylor."

MORE STORE NEWS: This gem is of prime vintage. A certain matron went to her husband's dresser and saw he had a stock of ties that he had never worn. They were brand new.

Thinking they were still negotiable she took them back to a downtown store and asked for a refund.

The department manager did not quibble but shelved out after a bit of hasty calculation to oblige the matron.

What's so strange about

present wanted to join in a sympathy walkout immediately.

The cameramen in New York already have walked off their jobs. But Aller said IATSE has threatened to put the New York local under trusteeship if the cameramen do not return to work.

The National Association of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians, which represents engineers and others at the stations, said NABET is backing the strikers "100 per cent."

Jim Green, NABET vice-president, said his union's members in Los Angeles are "refusing to cross the picket lines of AFTRA in increasing numbers," adding:

The dispute centres around a first-time contract for newsmen who write and broadcast the news.

In the past, they have been covered as performers in the AFTRA contract, but had no minimum weekly guarantee, no limitation on hours worked, no overtime pay, and they say they want to be treated as professional newsmen, not as performers.

Ironically, this is one reason

Huntley gave for refusing to respect the picket lines. He contends AFTRA is a union of singers, actors, jugglers, disc jockeys, announcers and every other type of performer.

Most network stars, including those whose salaries go up from the $100,000 level, support the strike even though they are, for the most part, on personal service contracts.

Bill Ryan, newscaster for NBC, used his picket sign as a support to sign autographs outside the RCA building in Rockefeller Plaza where he marched with other strikers.

Peter Jennings joined the AFK picket line in midtown Manhattan, and dozens of screaming teen-age girls crowded around him for his autograph.

William Small, CBS bureau chief in Washington, said he will cover the capital with management personnel who have had news experience.

Among those on the picket lines in Washington were such personalities as ABC commentator Howard K. Smith, CBS's Danier Schorr and Neil Boggs of NBC.

Your Good Health

Lesion Indicates Damage

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Please tell me what a lesion is. — MRS. W.H.

It means damage or flaw of almost any imaginable type.

A broken bone, a cut, a wart, a sore, a burn, a corn, a tumor, a bruise, a scratch—these and many others all are lesions.

Let's say you have an ulcer on your ankle. We refer to it as a lesion, regardless of how it got there. Or take some sort of problem involving a nerve. It may be infection, or the nerve may be pinched, or some disease may be attacking the nerve sheath. The word lesion still covers any of these.

It does not mean a disease. Measles is an example. The disease is all through the body, but each spot on the skin is a lesion.

A lesion can be as small as a pinprick, as obtrusive as a black eye, as harmless as a wart, as dangerous as a cancer.

as complicated as a dissecting aneurysm or as out-of-sight as an itchy patch of athlete's foot.

It's a handy word which saves a lot of time, but you are not the only one who is a bit puzzled by the term. It's a short way of saying "the place where something is wrong."

Dear Dr. Molner: I have severe hearing loss and with the most powerful hearing aid, I can hear only close-up conversations. I have been advised by the hearing aid agency and an ear surgeon to have an operation to loosen the stirrup in the ear which is supposed to have become anchored. It will not restore normal hearing but will greatly improve what is left.

I am past 77 and in good general health. Is such an operation likely to be successful, or is it unduly risky for health or further loss of hearing?

W.A.

At 77 and in good health, I'd go ahead with the operation.

Risk to health is negligible. Chance of success is excellent. The stirrup is one of a linkage of tiny bones which transmit the sound waves. If they become locked in place, even loud noises cannot get through clearly.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can frequent urination and straining to urinate in a 10-year-old boy be a serious condition? It started after a serious throat infection two years ago. A urologist examined him and found nothing wrong. I've thought of taking him to a neurologist—MRS. F.J.

Since the urologist found no bladder problem, this frequency could be due to diabetes insipidus. It would be wise to have him examined by an internist or neurologist.

(Note that diabetes insipidus is not the common "sugar diabetes" or diabetes mellitus. It is a considerably different disease, but is featured by abnormal intake of water and frequent urination.)

Vietnam Records 'Deadliest Week'

SAIGON (UPI)—Fighting in South Vietnam tapered off Thursday after the war's deadliest week saw a record of 2,774 Communists killed and set a new high of 274 American dead — surpassing a 1½-year-old record toll taken during the Ia Drang Valley battle of 1965.

But the intensive bombing of North Vietnam continued and a Hanoi broadcast claimed four more American planes had been shot down over the North this week.

'Mao Double Fools Public'

From AP-Writers
HONG KONG (CP)—The director of a research organization specializing in studies of Red China says she believes Mao Tse-tung is either dead or incapacitated and that a double makes appearances at public functions.

Maria Yen, Peking-born founder and director of the Union Research Institute of Hong Kong, told a newspaper reporter here Thursday she realizes many students of China's current turmoil would disagree with her. Every time Communist party Chairman Mao disappears from the scene in Peking, rumors crop up that he is either dead or disabled.

Miss Yen said Mao, 73, may have died in January or February last year or become incapacitated at the time.

She said she bases her speculation on reports drifting out of China, on the emergence of Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, from obscurity to prominence and on China's "cultural revolution," or purge.

Communist propaganda organs trace the purge to Mao, but Miss Yen said the movement would be out of character for Mao. She declined to believe Mao would have created the riotous Red Guard movement of teen-agers who have been on a rampage for a year.

TWO FACTIONS
Miss Yen said there are two power factions in China at present headed by Defence Minister Lin Biao and Premier Chou En-lai on one side and President Liu Shao-chi and Teng Hsiao-ping, chief secretary of the party, on the other.

"They are fighting for control and the first group is using Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, to establish the image that all she says has Mao's support."

"This is utterly ridiculous because during all the 20 years Mao and his wife have lived together, she has been in the background, as has all his family."

Although Miss Yen's theory, at one time or another proposed by other China experts in this British colony, has not found much support lately, her institute, supported by grants, is generally regarded in Western circles as well-informed about China.

Trail of death, destruction

Students Die as Motel Hit

Careening Jet Kills 18

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A DC-8 jet passenger plane flying a practice landing pattern cut a swath of destruction through a residential area near New Orleans International Airport early Thursday and exploded in a fiery crash into the rear of the Hilton Inn, killing 18 persons.

Nine of the dead were high school girls from the village of Juda, Wis. All but one were burned to death in their rooms as flames fed by fuel engulfed a portion of the motel at the airport. The ninth girl was blown out of the building.

The tragedy occurred only hours before the girls were scheduled to leave with their classmates for some fun on the Mississippi Gulf of Mexico coast. They were on a senior class vacation outing.

On board the Delta Air Lines jet were five pilots and an inspector for the Federal Aviation Agency. All were killed when the plane fell sharply during a banking turn, sliced through two homes and cartwheeled into the motel.

Fuel spewing from the exploding craft set off an inferno near the section where the Wisconsin students were quartered.

"It spouted a sea of fuel right to those rooms where those eight kids were staying," said Capt. Marvin Leonard of the New Orleans police department. "That's what killed them, not the impact from the wreckage."

TURNED WATER ON

You could see where they took refuge in the shower stalls. One girl even took her purse with her. They turned on the water but it didn't do them any good.

A Roman Catholic priest said last rites over the huddled, charred bodies. A mass memorial burial was planned in Juda. The remaining 23 students and their advisors arranged to leave by train for home with the bodies of their schoolmates.

The uninjured students and most of the other guests at the big motel ran in panic from their rooms when the jet struck about 1 a.m. At least 11 persons were injured.

MOTHER, SON

In addition to the students and the six on board the plane killed, a mother and her son living in one of the houses demolished by the plane lost their lives. A maintenance man at the motel also was killed.

Officials said as many as 30 or 40 guest units at the motel were destroyed or damaged. No financial estimate of the destruction was available.

A Civil Aeronautics Board team arrived from Washington to investigate the crash.

India Wants Guarantee Against China Before Supporting Nuclear Agreement

LONDON (UPI)—Prospects for the conclusion of a treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons have suffered a new setback.

India has joined the camp of those opposing the treaty, unless the pact offers sweeping safeguards which are hard to provide in present circumstances.

The Indian argument is that its security against a surprise

Chinese nuclear attack must be guaranteed if it is to forego the deterrent.

STILL STRAINED

India's relations with China remain strained and are likely to continue so for a long time while Peking is pushing fast towards full nuclear power status. India recently announced it had the ability to build a nuclear weapon.

Like West Germany, India also wants safeguards for unpaired peaceful nuclear development.

The treaty which seemed virtually certain only a few weeks ago now has become doubtful. At best there will be considerable delay before it can be completed. But mounting demands from non-nuclear nations may torpedo the projected pact.

GREAT HOPES

The Geneva conference which met in February amid great hopes to draft the treaty in a matter of months has recessed until May to allow for quiet off-stage negotiations.

But the Bonn government which started the ball rolling by demanding far-reaching safeguards as the price for underwriting the treaty has not budged so far, despite intensive American diplomacy and assurances that German peaceful nuclear requirements will not suffer under the projected treaty.

Other non-nuclear nations are known to have strong reservations as well. They have not yet voiced them in detail but are certain to come into the open before long, adding to the already existing complications.

The nuclear powers — the United States, Britain and Russia — are anxious to get the treaty as quickly as possible to halt the dangerous atomic weapons race.

Sombre Drum Beat Marks NATO Move

PARIS (LAT)—To the sombre roll of drums from a British military band, the flags of 15 NATO nations were lowered for the last time Thursday afternoon in front of Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers Europe, outside Paris.

Friday afternoon 14 of the NATO flags will be raised over a new SHAPE headquarters 180 miles to the north, outside the Belgian city of Mons. President de Gaulle's deadline to be out of France by April 1 has been met, and at the specific request of the French government the French flag will no longer fly alongside those of its NATO allies.

AMENITIES AND POLITENESS were nevertheless observed to the end between those departing and the French hosts, who were only too glad 16 years ago to make a site available for SHAPE, and lobby ceaselessly to get the NATO political headquarters to move to Paris from London where it was then located.

PRIME MINISTER LESTER PEARSON has expressed his concern over what he terms Canada's "preoccupation" with nationalism and national identity. He is worried about the Canadian attitude because he feels that science and technology have made national sovereignty practically obsolete.

"Canada," he told a Calgary audience Wednesday, "should never prefer isolation or continentalism to broad-based internationalism."

This is a peculiar stand for a Canadian prime minister to take at a time when his country is celebrating the first hundred years of its nationhood. It is even more peculiar when it is adopted by a man whose government introduced a new "national" Canadian flag and is hell-bent to establish a distinctively "national" unified defence force.

Certainly at no time in its history has Canada preferred either isolationist or continentalist policies over the broader-based concept of internationalism, as Mr. Pearson seemingly implies.

Canada, as an independent nation, has been and still is a member of the Commonwealth. It has fought four wars as part of a Commonwealth force. It enjoys the benefits of certain trade agreements through its membership in the Commonwealth. Surely this indicates its interest and support of a broad-based internationalism.

It is also an ardent member of the United Nations and a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. These also are areas of internationalism in which Canada participates.

What then does Mr. Pearson mean? Does he honestly believe that if Canadians are proud of their country they become less effective in the field of internationalism?

Does he really object to Canadians being a little nationalistic which, after all, simply means they are showing some zealotry for their country's freedom and right?

In his usual cryptic way Mr. Pearson seems to be chasing a bogey which doesn't exist.

Bold Strategies

IT IS JUST 25 years ago that British forces at St. Nazaire proved again the effectiveness of a combined military operation—and without any such revolutionary organization as unification, by the way.

The Royal Navy had undertaken a similar operation with equal success in the First World War when they stormed into Zeebrugge but the affair at St. Nazaire had very much greater significance. It deprived the Germans of a vital base of operations six miles up the River Loire at a time when the fortunes of war were very definitely against the Allies and by its audacity severely shook the confidence of the arrogant leaders in Berlin.

One old, narrow-gutted lend-lease Yankee destroyer, formerly USS Buchanan, renamed HMS Campbelltown, 16 motor launches, a motor gunboat in the van and a motor torpedo boat astern, formed the flotilla, with a total complement of 611 men. Only eight of the little vessels survived, but, astonishingly, only 169 were killed and another 200 taken prisoner.

"I am quite confident you will get in and do the job all right," Admiral of the Fleet Louis Mountbatten, the over-all planner, told Col. Charles Newman, the army force commander. "But, frankly, I don't expect any of you to get out again."

It was the one mistake in the thinking of Lord Louis. Not only did Campbelltown, packed with delayed-charge explosives, blow herself and the huge graving dock to destruction, the Commandos blasted the entire installation of the port and, in the process, inflicted far heavier casualties than they themselves suffered.

The success at St. Nazaire was the inspiration behind the planning of the Dieppe raid, in which the Canadians suffered so heavily.

But in these two operations the tacticians learned lessons which were to be employed in the massive combined operations in North Africa, Sicily, Salerno, Madagascar, a hundred Pacific islands and, finally on the beaches of Normandy.

Canadians who participated in these stirring events will remember the planning, the training, the hours of study of terrain, and all the other essential preparations in which sailors, soldiers and airmen worked with harmony and precision, each branch to its own specialty, but so co-ordinated that the striking force was a single devastating entity.

At a briefing before D-Day commanding officers were told: "You are to put your vessels on the beaches no matter what the cost." The air forces would prepare the way, the fleets would storm the coast defences and the troops would finish the job, he said. "This is the greatest combined operation in history."

Here was an example of unification not only of arms but of nations but without the loss of identity of unit or service.

It is recommended for study by Ottawa's military planners.

B.C.'s Railway

IT MAY BE SAID of some names from out of the past—the Colonist's for instance—that they serve to keep history alive. The same does not hold true when to practically everyone, a name has lost its meaning.

A case in point is British Columbia's Pacific Great Eastern Railway. Even in the days when it was a sad joke, a railway "from nowhere to nowhere," the significance of the Great Eastern label had long faded. It was sometimes called the Please Go Easy, or the Fatullo Go East, the latter presumably with the idea that the premier ought to find financial aid for the provincial white elephant.

It runs northwards and early builders must have had their tongues in their cheeks when they called it "Great," for it was to be virtually a branch line to the Grand Trunk Pacific from eastern Canada to Prince Rupert—the only justification for the "Eastern."

There is another PGE in the Pacific Northwest, Portland General Electric, which is brought to mind by an editorial in the Oregonian expressing fear that nuclear power plants to be built by the PGE and others may "thermally pollute" the Columbia. This is a development with which our own PGE would certainly not like to be associated.

And the Pacific Great Eastern is no longer a semi-comic railway. The province is proud of it. Perhaps the time has come when it should have a new name, and one that means something.

"Better stop composing new lyrics for 'O Canada' and start explaining your tax return..."

Dateline: Europe

American Pull-Back Foreseen

By OTTO VON HABSBURG

AMERICAN forces in Europe are again in the news. Rumors and denials fly as thick as statements by high-ranking persons in Washington.

Despite obviously inspired utterances, one must expect a substantial withdrawal of American troops from NATO countries. According to well-informed sources, they will be diminished by 50,000 in 1967. This number should be doubled in 1968.

The European reaction, especially in Germany, is painful. But reasonable thinking should have shown, since the beginning of the decade, that Washington's decision is both inevitable and logical.

To understand the real significance of what will happen, one must go back to the origins of America's overseas presence. Before 1850 such presence was justified by a two-pronged consideration. The forces guaranteed, in a semi-classical period, the security of Western Europe against possible Soviet designs. At the same time the armies between the Atlantic Ocean and the Elbe river had a considerable political weight.

Before IROCMs were built, America had, thanks to its air force and advance bases, the means to reach Russia with its nuclear bombs, while Russia could only strike at Europe. America not being vulnerable, a nuclear war was not unthinkable for Washington.

The American troops were justified in an advanced area, since the force of retaliation was such that the U.S.S.R. would not initiate nuclear action in Europe, which would have resulted in the destruction of Russia while leaving the U.S.A. intact.

With Soviet progress in ballistic missiles, the situation changed. Once America was directly threatened, a classical operation in Europe became most unlikely due to the probability of escalation towards super-arms. In other words, the presence of American forces became symbolic, which may be reassuring for the population, but has no true significance.

While the importance of American troops in Europe was declining, a situation arose in Asia analogous to the one that existed in Europe in 1949. China is today in the same position as was Russia at the time when the NATO treaty was signed. Before an identical menace a similar reaction is logical. Hence the necessity to transfer American divisions to the Far East.

In this situation, hysterical reactions are unjustified. Europe must understand that it has no right to expect unlimited protection from its overseas friends; it is sufficiently strong to stand on its own feet on condition that it pursues a realistic policy. To this end, political unification is needed together with the rejection of the non-proliferation treaty, which threatens to deprive Europe of the sole defence that can assure peace and security in the world of tomorrow.

Senator Croll Sees a Trend To Brake Welfare Statism

By RICHARD JACKSON,
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

If you can believe it, the tax news just might be good. Or at least, better than it has been in these financially reckless days of the federal tax-and-spend spiral.

The word comes from Senator David A. Croll, a career politician if there ever was one—since 1930 mayor of Windsor, Ontario provincial labor and welfare minister, and for the last 27 years, first a frontbench MP and then a senator.

The senator, long a key but never a federal cabinet Liberal, says his party's political pendulum is about to begin to reverse its long swing.

Would you believe that?

Senator Croll is what the parliamentary trade almost always has known as "a Liberal's Liberal."

(Note the large and small "I" there, for they flash the signal that Dave Croll until very recently has been even more liberal than the Liberal Party—which is about as liberal as you can get without going for socialism's broke.)

To give you just a clue as to David Croll's very special brand of liberalism, let us recall the high drama of his walkout from the Ontario Liberal cabinet of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn back in the Hungry Thirties.

It was the tense time when the then Congress of Industrial Organizations (the old CIO) had invaded Canada from Detroit to unionize the motor plants at Oshawa, and Premier Hepburn had called out the Ontario Provincial Police to stop what he clearly considered as a threatened revolution.

Out of "Mitch" Hepburn's cabinet in protest, stalked Dave Croll, leaving behind him that flaming quote which was to become his banner all down the years: "I'd rather walk with the workers than ride with General Motors."

He brought that swinging brand of lower-case "I" liberalism with him to Parliament and was a leader of the "reform" groups in pushing for family allowances, old-age pensions, the guaranteed income, medicare, and all and any forms of social security.

David Croll was for social security, no matter what and come what may. Period.

He saw the welfare state as Nirvana at the end of the yellow brick road.

So you might expect that if Senator Croll says his party's political pendulum is swinging right—that would still leave it pretty far left.

Way out in deepest left field, even.

But not so. For something has happened to this old pro of the pole. And this happening just might be an indication of better days to come for the taxpayer.

Senator Croll, eyeing the new federal estimates, notes with a worried frown that they're up another $1 billion to just below $12 billion.

And he wonders how and who's going to pay for it. Not the taxpayers, he hopes, for he has been seeing alarming signs that they've had more than enough.

Not just those he calls "the big boys," either, the large income earners who get whacked with those higher-than-high tax rates.

But his favorite people, "the little guys," as he calls them, who don't earn all that much and so aren't hit so painfully in the hip by the federal revenue man.

"We're getting all kinds of smoke signals from these little guys," he says, "that they've had enough of social security and welfare statism for a while—and knowing at last that they've got to pay taxes for these welfare services—say that what they want now is little spending money left in their pockets."

So now, says Dave Croll, even the liberals of the Liberal Party, with sensitive ears to the political ground, are ready to

Chichester's Theory

'The Joy of Living' Action, Not Success

By CHRISTOPHER BRANNER

SIR Francis Chichester, aged 66, has rounded The Horn and is sailing back to London. Some say it was all a publicity stunt, his solo voyage halfway around the world to Australia and then on again, continuing west until he reaches London again.

And Sir Francis would agree that he made the most of his trip. He would agree that others have rounded The Horn in smaller craft.

And he would say, "So what." He is not proving anything to the world. He is merely living what he calls "a real life."

To him, this "real life" means freedom to roam, to test himself against new challenges in complete freedom, which comes only when he is alone. It has been so since he was a boy.

When he went to public school, it was "like entering a prison," which he made even more uncomfortable for himself by sleeping, even in winter, under nothing more than a sheet. Destined for the university and the Indian Civil Service, he took himself away from school at 17. Again his father was furious.

He spent a year on a Leicestershire farm before sailing for New Zealand with about $30 tucked into a money belt. In 10 years he turned that into more than $50,000 working as a stoker, sheep-station hand, and successful writer, tree-feller, gold prospector, coal miner and door-to-door salesman until he finally made his fortune in property.

He also planted a million trees, some from seeds raised in his backyard. (Those trees, now matured, have been his financial backbone.) He married and had a son. (His wife died in 1930 after they had been separated for three years.)

One of his sidelines, started up with his partner in the property business, was the Goodwood-Chichester Aviation Company Ltd. He came home to England to learn to fly, bought a Gipsy I Moth and set off to attack the London-Sydney record.

His navigation was rudimentary, his skill suspect and he drove his body too hard. Desperately tired with less than three hours sleep in 40, he ended his flight in a water-filled salt pan in Tripoli with a broken propeller.

Next he took on the Tasman Sea. No one had flown across it alone. "I had a great urge to be the first to do it." An Australian called Menzies beat him to that, but by now put on the brakes on the reckless ride into socialism. It'll be done, muses the senator, by what he calls "priorities." The liberals of the Liberal Party will still be for bigger and better social security, "but later."

A sort of built-in guarantee that more welfare statism will be getting this "low priority" is offered in the lineup of leaders to replace Prime Minister Pearson.

The favorites, Finance Minister Sharp, Defence Minister Hellyer, and Trade Minister Winters are of the Right.

Desert Arms Race Worries Diplomats

By STEPHEN O. HUGHES from Rabat, Morocco

KING Hassan II of Morocco says he has "disquieting forebodings" about a massive build-up of Soviet arms in neighboring Algeria. His apprehensions are shared by Western diplomats here.

Western observers here note that the arrival of the Russian arsenal in Algeria coincides with the East-West détente in Europe, with the withdrawal of British military units from Malta and Gibraltar, and the virtual withdrawal of France from NATO. They also point out that the U.S.S.R. now has arms dumped at strategic points stretching from Algeria to the Gulf of Aden, being located also in the United Arab Republic and Syria on the northern end of the Red Sea, and in Somalia and the Yemen on the southern end.

Reliable sources say that in the last 18 months or so Algeria has received from the U.S.S.R. over 200 heavy tanks, 70 MIG fighters, 150 armored personnel carriers, 18 Ilyushin-28 medium bombers, dozens of heavy assault guns transport aircraft, helicopters and SAM missiles.

Officially the Algerian army has 47,000 men but Moroccan sources say strength is now "well over 60,000," making it the second largest army in Africa, after the Egyptian. It is thought there are more than 2,000 Russian technicians as well.

As the Russian arms arrived, the Algerians inspired reports saying the United States was reactivating military bases in North Africa, particularly in Morocco where four large air bases were evacuated in 1963. A Moroccan official remarked: "This is typical cold war propaganda—when you are getting arms from Russia the first thing you do is accuse your neighbors of getting arms from the U.S."

A high-ranking Algerian official told me the Russian weapons were "purely defensive." He pointed out that Morocco claimed large tracts of Algerian territory, and therefore there was a potential danger of the Moroccan army trying to move in to take over Moroccan claims to Western Algeria touched off armed clashes on the border in the autumn of 1963. The fighting was stopped by the intervention of the African Unity Organization. But the Moroccan government persists with its territorial claims.

For centuries Moroccan monarchs controlled most of the western Sahara, until the end of the Ottoman Empire's rule in North Africa. Their realms included what is now southern Algeria, Mauritania and the Spanish Sahara colony. After the French moved into North Africa, parts of western Algeria continued to be controlled by the colonial administration in Rabat. This was notably the case with the oasis of Tindouf. But just before Morocco became independent in 1956, France switched Tindouf and other areas to her administration in Algiers, in the mistaken belief that Algeria would be perpetually French. The principal Moroccan argument, therefore, is that this territory was "amputated" from Morocco by the colonial regime and should by rights be returned.

As far as is known, no oil has been found in the disputed area. But there are large iron ore deposits, reputed to be among the world's largest, and considerable reserves of phosphate.

The Moroccan argument was recognized as legitimate in 1961 when Algerian nationalist leader Ferhat Abbas signed an accord with King Hassan agreeing to negotiate a settlement of the issue when Algeria became independent. With this assurance in writing, the king gave the Algerians all-out support. He backed the first Algerian president, Ahmed Ben Bella, and gave asylum to Colonel Houari Boumedienne, who at the time led reserve troops based in northeast Morocco.

When independence came, Ben Bella and Colonel Boumedienne marched to Algiers, but King Hassan waited in vain for the promised negotiations. On the contrary, the present regime in Algiers accuses Morocco of "expansionist designs." It declares it will not give up "an inch or a grain of sand" because 1,500,000 Algerians shed their blood to liberate their territory. Hardly a day goes by without the Moroccan radio raising the issue, to be followed by the same adamant refusal by Algeria to entertain any claims.

This is the background to King Hassan's appeal to Secretary-General U Thant to set up a UN disarmament commission for North Africa, in an attempt to avert a dangerous arms race in the area. The king's proposal was termed "unacceptable" by the Algerians.

To offset the Soviet arms build-up in some measure, the king obtained a promise of $15 million worth of U.S. arms when he paid an official visit to Washington in February. In addition Morocco is buying dozen Northrop F-5 jetfighters in the U.S.

All this would not be a match for the Algerian army. But by alerting international opinion to the situation, Morocco hopes it has assured itself of support in the event of trouble.

Nations Compete

Zambian Airlift Profitable Prize

By RICHARD HALL from Zambia

ZAMBIA is the richest country in East and Central Africa, and it is here that a protracted contest, involving a number of international airlines, has been taking place. Now a decision is expected within the next few days, and the fat prize for the winner will be a contract to control Zambia Airways. The joint favorites are British Overseas Airways, the Lockheed group of America, and Alitalia.

Central African Airways, based on Salisbury, Rhodesia, is now flying down to South Africa to bring back 11 tons of breakfast cereals of which there is an acute shortage in Zambia because of railway import delays.

Laker's advantage in bidding for the contract is like BUA's: Zambia already owns two BAC 111s which it bought when Central African Airways could not take up its option. These 111s are now on lease to British Eagle. If a British company gets the contract it will have expertise more readily available to fly and service 111s than would the Italians or Americans. Laker already has four 111s operating in his own company. There is a 111 simulator for pilot training now idle in Salisbury. Nobody knows what will happen to that when the breakup takes place.

One handicap facing Alitalia is the need to supply English-speaking ground staff. There has been considerable discussion between the Zambian government and Alitalia officials on this point.

The outsider in the field is the American Flying Tiger line based in Los Angeles. Its interest became known only recently. Nobody gives it much of a chance.

But all the competitors are united in one thing. They are worried about the time factor. Many of the present Zambia Airways staff are Rhodesians who will be anxious to leave after the break-up—and for political reasons the cabinet will be glad to see them go.

In the words of a Lockheed official, setting up an organization to maintain operations will take something like a year whoever wins the deal.

Two Million People Still Live as Slaves

By TOM FORD, from London

A dossier is being prepared by an Englishman to show that there are at least 2,000,000 slaves in the modern world. Col. Patrick Montgomery, 53, who has presented material on slavery to the United Nations Commission on Human Rights in Geneva, operates from a third-floor office here on behalf of a body called the Anti-Slavery Society.

He has collected evidence of organized slavery stretching from the Philippines to Saudi Arabia, from the Sahara to the High Andes of Peru. His last report concluded bluntly: "There is no likelihood of slavery being eliminated in the foreseeable future."

Eleven years ago Montgomery persuaded the British government to introduce the Convention on Slavery at the United Nations, which banned owning or trading in slaves. In 1962 the UN General Assembly voted unanimously that all countries should be urged to ratify this convention. But so far only 65 have done so. The United States has still not made up its mind.

In 1964 the United Nations appointed R. Mohamed Awad of Egypt to look into world slavery and report on the seriousness of the problem. He sent a questionnaire to all members. Forty failed to reply at all, and Awad concluded that many had something to hide. He said there were at least 1,250,000 slaves in the world, and probably more.

But still the United Nations has failed to take positive action. Only last year the matter was dropped after a 10-day debate, and referred to the Commission on Human Rights for a recommendation. This is the body Montgomery is working on at present.

He has circulated to members a number of fully documented cases.

One was of a girl called Aoulcha, 7, who was kidnapped outside her school at Tindouf in southwest Algeria at 11 a.m. on Oct. 1, 1963. Her French schoolmaster, Andre Challard, who now lives in Paris, saw it happen. He was expelled by the Algerian authorities for trying to interfere.

The girl's father, Mouissa, found out later that his daughter had been sold across the border as a slave to a rich landowner in Mauritania. The Anti-Slavery Society wrote to the president of Mauritania who replied that he could not be expected to find the girl since there were more than 20,000 slaves in his country. Aoulcha has not been seen since.

A reporter for the German magazine, Der Stern, recently found a girl named Fakhr, 16, working in a brothel in Bandar Abbas in the Persian Gulf. She told him her parents had sold her to a passing trader to repay a "debt" to their feudal landlord.

In the remote province of Rel Bouba in northern Cameroon, central Africa, the traditional ruler, the Lamido of Rel Bouba, has more than 1,000 slaves. He is allowed to keep them because an agreement he signed with the French in 1918 in return for his help in fighting the Germans said he could have as many slaves as he liked.

A Norwegian missionary, Rev. Halldan Endresen, watched slaves working all the daylight hours in Rel Bouba with no food and only 15 minute rest. He took a picture of a slave being flogged at the Lamido's feet.

A Roman Catholic organization has reported evidence of young girls being sold into domestic drudgery and prostitution throughout Latin America. The report noted: "This practice was particularly bad in Mexico, where the highest prices were obtained from brothels near the Texas border."

Twenty-two Macu Indians were lured to a Colombian rubber plantation where they were worked without pay all day and chained at night. They escaped, but only three reached home to tell their tale.

Last year an English writer reported on a visit to the brothel area of Ankara, the Turkish capital.

"The brothel area was surrounded by a high wall pierced by a doorway less than three feet wide guarded by uniformed men, police or soldiers, who also patrolled the interior, which was brilliantly lit until 3 a.m. to facilitate public order. The area contained 40 houses, each with 10 or 12 girls. They appeared to have neither freedom nor rights and to be completely abject."

The Anti-Slavery Society is compiling evidence of new slave trade routes in Africa. The old routes went from Kano in northern Nigeria to Lake Chad, then north through the Sahara to Sudan. From there the camel caravans moved east to the Red Sea or north to the Libyan ports. Recent evidence suggests that many routes end in Benghazi, where merchants stockpile slaves like investments.

Cases reach Montgomery almost every week. One of the latest was from Ceylon where the chief of police admitted that more than 1,000 children went missing every year. He added that some had been found in forced labor camps on the coast.

In Singapore there are police reports of children dying in brothels. There is a brisk trade in slaves in ships off the coast of Muscat and Oman.

A South Arabian sultan brought a slave to his suite in a London hotel last year, and left her to sleep on the floor outside his room.

Montgomery's problem is not improved by the knowledge that almost every country has banned slavery. In fact, this only makes his problem worse. What he is working for now is an international body under the aegis of the United Nations, that will investigate any cases that are reported.

But self-protectively, it seems, the world is not keen to look too closely into its darkest corners.

Record Quenches Expectations

Latin American Summit To Map Common Market

By ARCH MacKENZIE

from Washington
Lofty aspirations have never been lacking in Latin America and a new one — perhaps the most challenging yet — is being shaped under the vigilant eye of the United States.

The format, to be unveiled with considerable fanfare at a hemisphere summit conference, April 12-14, is a Latin American common market.

But despite official U.S. optimism, the Latin American record does not encourage expectations of quick or easy solutions for political, economic and social progress among the 230,000,000 people in the 20 nations adhering with the U.S. to the Organization of American States.

The U.S., while not proposing to join the common market itself, has been working feverishly behind the scenes to prepare accord for the summit conference at Punta del Este, Uruguay.

President Johnson on this weekend is having the Washington envoys of the Latin American states to one of his Texas ranch barbecue extravaganzas. Few foreign plenipotentiaries are so honored.

He has sweetened the path with a pledge of another $1,500,000,000 in aid to Latin America in the next five years, above and beyond the annual contribution of about $1,000,000,000 under the Alliance for Progress launched by the late president Kennedy.

As now envisaged, there is agreement in principle to create a common market — with a common tariff structure against outside goods and free movement of trade within — no later than 1985. The U.S. had been pressing for an earlier start.

There already exists a five-nation Central American common market.

The objective is ambitious anywhere: in Latin America it may be doubly so. President Johnson's offer of another $300,000,000 annually in aid has been coolly received as inadequate.

Official U.S. assertions of considerable progress in Latin America are confronted with this recent disclaimer from President Eduardo Frei of Chile, spokesman for Latin America's few democratically-elected leaders.

"Less than half of the Latin American countries have started serious programs of agrarian reform," says Frei. "Drastic changes in the tax system are even scarcer, while the number of democratic regimes, far from increasing, has actually declined."

In Frei's view, "the ultimate objective of the alliance — the formation of just, stable, democratic and dynamic societies — is as distant today as it was five years ago."

As the Christian Science Monitor notes about the dictator-prone Latin American scene today, "the dilemma for the U.S. in Latin America is as acute as ever."

Paraguay is presided over by autocrat Alfredo Stroessner. Brazil and Argentina are ruled by military juntas and Honduras, Haiti, Bolivia and Nicaragua are examples of strong-man government. Ironically, such democratic governments as Venezuela's are the most threatened from the left.

Rhodesia Feels Pinch

Sanctions Noose Tightens Slowly

By DAVE McINTOSH

From Ottawa

The sanctions noose is tightening on Rhodesia but little evidence is seen by diplomats here that Ian Smith's government is losing popular support yet.

Canada imposed a full trade embargo against Rhodesia in February, 1966, three months after the African country declared its independence from Britain on the basis of white-supremacy government.

Sanctions became mandatory last December in accord with a United Nations resolution.

Countries imposing the sanctions hope that, as the sanctions gradually take effect, enough Rhodesians will see that the UN means business and force their government to resume some type of political negotiations with Britain.

Last year Rhodesia sold only 30 per cent of its tobacco crop, one of its chief exports. This year — tobacco sales begin next month — sales are expected to be even smaller.

The sanctions apply not only against Rhodesian exports of tobacco but against the other chief products of the country: meat, sugar and metals.

Rhodesian exports are estimated to have fallen off by 20 to 30 per cent to date. There is some unemployment and emigration.

Air Transport Command Bill to Taxpayers:

Each Hour of Flight: $1,199

By FRED CEDERBERG

From Ottawa

It cost Canadian taxpayers $1,199 last year for every flying hour logged by the RCAF's Air Transport Command.

The charge, based on 112,000 flying hours at a cost of $134,325,000, includes capital spending, maintenance and operational and personnel expenditures.

And in this fiscal year, Canada's "second national airline" will cost an estimated $123,247,000.

The ATC's chief duties include armed forces exercises and ferrying services personnel on rotation leave and duty changes.

In the past year, 174,000 such passengers were moved plus 24,000 tons of air cargo. ATC has 12 Yukons, 10 Composites and 23 giant Hercules C130s as well as numerous small and older aircraft such as Dakotas.

The Yukons are four-engine; the Composites, twin turbo-prop carriers. One hundred and sixty-seven pilots are on strength. Their pay rates, exclusive of the government's 10 per cent contribution to their pension plan, range between $5,700 and $9,336.

The figures are based on the difference between a basic commissioned rank of pilot officer up to a flight lieutenant with eight years' service. National defence experts insist a strong, ready ATC is a necessity.

They say that only through the ATC can the RCAF retain a pool of trained pilots, a force available to move Canadian troops and supplies in line with the country's peace-keeping work.

Yet British and U.S. planners have taken a different tack to solve the same problem — they charter equipment and personnel from commercial carriers.

The U.S., with huge global commitments, has contracted for the commercial movement of rotation and leave personnel and freight valued at $600,000,000.

British defence analysts, with an eye on their country's economic ills, rely on non-scheduled commercial carriers such as British Eagle, Trans-Globe and Caledonia to ferry men and material to Middle East and Far East trouble spots.

This is virtually impossible in Canada. We do not have a sufficient network of small carriers, largely because of Air Transport Board policies.

Yet, curiously, the Air Transport Board has been getting into the air charter business itself.

Air Transport Board costs have shot up an astronomical 71 per cent, in two years — from $687,633 to $1,180,000. Thus, while the small but powerful Air Transport Board is chartering, it refuses permission to establish more commercial companies which could carry out such duties.

And Air Transport Command maintains its status as a second national airline wholly subsidized by tax dol-

Best Treatment For Colds: Don't

LAT, from Los Angeles

North Americans are loaded with myths concerning the treatment of the common cold, a leading British authority said here this week.

Decongestants, for example, which North Americans gobble by the millions each winter for relief from the common cold, "probably do more harm than good," said Dr. Charles H. Stuart-Harris of the University of Sheffield.

"The most important treatment is not to treat—no decongestants, no antibiotics, no aspirin," he said. Decongestants dry up the mucosa at a time when they are inflamed and shouldn't be dried up.

"Let's be sensible about this and allow a sensitive mucosa to rest."

The physician is one of the world's leading authorities on the relationship between colds and the ultimate development of far more crippling respiratory diseases.

Dr. Stuart-Harris said he recommends antibiotics if the person already has chronic chest disease or some other chronic condition, but not for healthy individuals. "I don't believe in giving aspirin freely for colds—there are too many gastric hemorrhages from ulcers around," he said.

British Oil Battle Moves From Bombs to Beaches

LAND'S END, England (UPI) — On sea, the battle of the demolished super-tanker Torrey Canyon all but ended Thursday. On land, the battle of the oil-polluted beaches and record insurance claims was just beginning.

For the third day in a row Royal Air Force and navy jet fighters pounded the blistered, battered oil tanker with 100,000 pounds of bombs and napalm.

The three-day rain of fire apparently succeeded in burning out the crude oil remaining in the hold of the American-owned vessel.

"It looks as though this is probably the end of the bombing operation," Home Secretary Jenkins announced later.

But on land a titanic battle between the beaches and wildlife operation was beginning to pick up momentum and the British government was becoming apprehensive about the cost of bombing and ridding the resort shoreline of crude oil, leaking for the past 13 days from the shattered ship.

Prime Minister Wilson made it clear that all legal aspects of the matter were being studied.

"We shall certainly press every claim on behalf of British interests that need to be pressed," he told newsmen. The ship, owned by the Union Oil Co. of California, was registered in Liberia and manned by an Italian crew.

Two members of the team set up by the Liberian government to hold a full inquiry into the economic catastrophe arrived in London Thursday. Team leader M. V. C. Malcolmson, a member of the Society of Naval Architects in the United States and England, and lawyer Kenneth Volk were to stay in London until the weekend and then fly to Genoa to interview the Italian crew.

The Torrey Canyon, 974-feet long, was built at Newport News, Va. It was insured for a record $16,500,000 when, loaded with its cargo of 118,000 tons of crude oil from the Persian Gulf, it ran onto the treacherous Seven Stones Reef off the south-western-most point of England.

Such Stress, Strain In Woman's Domain

Men—Stick to Your Bridges

By NANCY BROWN

Engineering students might design a better brassiere and pigs might fly.

That's the way Victoria women reacted Tuesday to the idea of allowing a college engineering department to undertake the design and development of a better brassiere.

Having men design them is probably the trouble with the present day brassiere — the answer is to have women doing the designing.

David De Ford, an 18-year-old freshman at Harvey Mudd College in California, dreamed up the project.

"The problem could be approached like a bridge," De Ford has said. "There are stresses and strains to be considered, and frequency of collapse."

"A man would dream up a beautiful bridge," retort the ladies, "and then put in the underpinnings."

"If the terrain didn't suit, he would alter it, digging and drilling, bringing in additional loads, and removing others."

All a woman needs is to have an engineer design a brassiere on this principle. Perhaps he'd like to wear it, too.

How delightful to see a man wriggling as he tried to anchor the garment in place!

The furtive twitch as he tried to stop it riding up. The tug after reaching for a half shelf.

How about the whalebone on the strapless model, which digs into a blister on the ribs? And the sinking feeling as something give way — probably some man-made elastic. There are as many problems as there are women. Big problems and little problems, and a man's role is to admire the finished product, not meddle with the arrangements.

On the market at the moment are hundreds of different brassieres.

Sizes, design and materials may vary, but since all are aimed at creating the perfect figure (from a man's viewpoint, of course) on females who don't often have the perfect contours, the problems are likely to continue as long as there are men to please.

The engineering students should go back to the stresses and strains they understand.

The design of women's underwear should be given to those with firsthand knowledge of the problems.

Cold Clogs Cameras

Polar Party Covers 85 Miles

EDMONTON (CP) — The expedition, on route to the North Pole by motorized sled, was reported Thursday to have travelled 85 miles of its projected 800-mile dog-leg journey over the ice from Eureka, N.W.T., on Ellesmere Island.

The party left Eureka, 2,530 miles north of Montreal, Tuesday.

Radio reports from the eight-man party's camp and from the base at Eureka were heard by amateur radio operators here.

Cpl. John Austad of Namao, Alta., an RCAF survival expert, a scheduled member of the expedition, was delayed by weather from joining the group at the start. He was flown Thursday from Resolute Bay, N.W.T., with two sled dogs, to join the party.

Temperatures of 20 degrees below zero and a wind of 30 miles an hour were reported to have caused early trouble with the expedition's movie cameras. A U.S. Navy plane based at Thule in northern Greenland was to fly over the party Friday, scout the projected route to the Pole and report by radio. The expedition, headed by Ralph S. Plaisted of St. Paul, Minn., hopes to be the first to reach the Pole over the ice since Admiral Peary accomplished the feat with dog sleds in 1909. It also is testing food, clothing and other equipment under Arctic conditions.

Bitten Boy Survives

Gamble of Life Won

SPEONK, N.Y. (UPI) — Charles Lebrun won his biggest gamble Thursday — with death. The stakes were high: the life of his 8-year-old son, Michael.

On March 2, Michael was riding his bicycle near the family's Long Island home when he was attacked by three wild dogs. Knocked from his bicycle, his clothes ripped to tatters, the boy suffered 300 bites on the arms and legs before the dogs ran off.

When the animals could not be found — even after a search by Suffolk County police and state troopers — Michael's father was forced to decide whether the boy would undergo a painful series of rabies inoculations.

Lebrun decided against the shots, which sometimes have serious side effects. If he made the right choice, the blue-eyed, brown-haired boy would live. The wrong choice meant death.

Michael's incubation period ended Thursday and the Lebruns' family doctor gave him a clean bill of health.

For Michael and his family, it is the end of a four-week nightmare. "We couldn't eat. We couldn't sleep," said Lebrun, a 30-year-old civilian inspector at Suffolk Air Force Base.

"We've been taking his temperature and feeling his forehead 30 times a day," he said. "Ten days ago we were in the city and Michael said he didn't feel well. We brought him right home and found he had a fever. We went into a panic, but it was only a cold. The next day he was fine."

Lebrun's anxiety continued even last night, when Michael suddenly said that he felt like the room was closing in on him. The boy's headache was later attributed to excitement. Letters and phone calls have deluged the family for the last four weeks. Some callers expressed sympathy, others called to give advice, a few letters called Lebrun a "murderer" for the risk he took.

Thursday, at last, the wheel of fortune ground to a halt and Lebrun came up the winner.

PTA Vote Backs Reading of Bible

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Parent-Teacher Federation defeated a resolution at its convention Wednesday that urged elimination of compulsory Bible reading in schools.

The resolution, which proposed the federation move for amendment of the Public School Act, was defeated by a 2-1 margin.

Backers of the resolution said compulsion to read passages from the Bible contradicts the principles of democracy.

The Parent-Teacher group also announced it will give a copy of an Emily Carr painting to all B.C. schools as their centennial project.

Copies of the painting, entitled "Haida Totems—Prince Rupert, 1912," were also given to B.C.P.T.F. president Mrs. Marion Redgrave. The Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Association; and The Washington State Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Deliverers Hesitate In Strike Showdown

NEW YORK (AP) — One of 10 unions negotiating a new contract with New York City's five newspapers stopped the clock Thursday night five minutes before their midnight strike deadline.

Mediator Theodore Kheel announced at 1:55 p.m. that the deliverers union had made "some progress" and had agreed to hold off striking to permit peace talks to continue without scrapping their "no contract-no work" stand.

Meanwhile, the printers union continued negotiations in another room to help avert a walk-out of the 17,000 employees on the five papers.

Representatives of the other eight unions waited at a nearby hotel with no indication they would call a strike despite expiration of their contracts at midnight Thursday.

The powerful printers union scheduled slow downs against The Daily News but announced it was withholding strike action. The union called The Daily News an obstacle to overall settlement and said it planned to hold meetings during which printers on the morning paper would leave their jobs.

Others among 10 industry unions, however, could wreck the armistice and spearhead a walkout that would cut off a combined circulation of nearly 4,000,000 daily.

Wages were the chief issue.

Visitor Saved

WAILUA, Hawaii (CP) — Canadian tourist John Davis, 33, narrowly escaped death Wednesday when he was caught in heavy surf offshore from his hotel in this town on the northern Hawaiian island of Kauai.

Mr. Davis, a pharmacist from Vancouver, was saved by Larry Kahaunui who ran into the ocean after Mrs. Peggy Davis called for help.

"If it had not been for Larry," said Mrs. Davis, "I would not have a husband."

The youth held Mr. Davis' head above water for 15 minutes until William Kahaunui, a policeman, reached them with a surfboard.

Vigilantes Combine To Save Mustangs

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Vigilantes are riding the range in the Nicola Valley near this south central B.C. city in an effort to stop a gang of "mustangers" who they say are killing the last wild horses in the province.

John Hussey of Lower Nicola said Wednesday he organized the vigilantes to protect the wild stock, believed to be descendants of horses brought to Mexico by the Spaniards hundreds of years ago.

He said in an interview that 30 wild horses have been shot this winter and "mustangers" have rounded up many more which have been trucked out of the valley for horse meat.

NO PERMITS

"Until this year, the provincial government issued roundup permits to capture the horses, but now anyone can take them away," Mr. Hussey said.

A spokesman for the grazing division of the provincial lands and forests department confirmed no permits have been renewed.

Mr. Hussey said both the RCMP and the grazing division have made no real effort to find and stop the "mustangers." He said the gang uses a light aircraft and motorized toboggans to chase the animals through the snow.

HERD DOWN

He said the wild-horse herd has decreased from about 500 three years ago to about 100 this year.

Mr. Hussey first pledged $500 for information leading to conviction of anyone caught killing the horses. The offer was backed by the Canadian Wild Horse Society, which has been trying since 1964 to save the mustangs from extinction.

Then he organized the vigilantes to keep a lookout for the "mustangers." Most of those patrolling the valley are ranchers from the area.

Airtight Room Best Spot

Wife's Valentine Backfires

CORNWALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Except for the skin, DeWayne Williams' frozen elephant has thawed.

However, the meat and bones are in an airtight room. Williams, 23, bought the 100-pound frozen baby elephant at an auction Feb. 14 in Portland as a Valentine Day present for his wife.

It had been preserved as evidence for four years in a deep freeze locker for a lawsuit that never took place. The owner of the elephant never claimed it and it was sold to Williams, who is going to stuff the elephant.

It took more than two days to skin it in his basement. Meanwhile, it thawed and smelled very bad.

"But the minute we took the meat and bones out, the smell went away," he said, relieved.

The carcass was taken to the dermatoid room at Oregon State University, where beetles will eat the bones clean in about two months.

Williams said this was a common way to clean skeletons for classroom study.

He will not use the bones for the stuffed specimen. They are not strong enough. Williams is building a frame of wood and steel over which he will drape the skin.

He hopes to have it ready for a lecture on his hobbies he will give at the Cornwallis YMCA May 2.

The bones will be sold to a research outfit. The skin will be dunked in preservatives and sewn over the frame.

'Now Is Time for Johnson to Act'

Lane Predicts Conviction in JFK Case

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Mark Lane, an original critic of the Warren Commission's report, said Thursday he has reviewed New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison's evidence of a Kennedy assassination conspiracy and predicted Garrison will get a conviction.

"They are going to be embarrassed when the jury says guilty," Lane told about 400 persons. His talk was sponsored by the crime committee of the New Orleans Young Men's Business Club.

Lane

By "they," Lane meant news-magazines, newspapers, wire services, television and radio which, he said, were trying to discredit Garrison's investigation.

SAW EVIDENCE

"I have seen the evidence," Lane said. "The water has been poisoned. If he disregarded the evidence he would deserve the criticism he has received for following it."

"The foundations of the country will be shaken when the evidence is disclosed in court."

"There are some in high places who will do all they can to prevent that day coming." Garrison charges a conspiracy to assassinate President John F. Kennedy was hatched in New Orleans in the summer of 1963. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

'NO EVIDENCE'

A commission headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren, after an investigation of nine months and after questioning thousands of witnesses, said Lee Harvey Oswald killed Kennedy unaided and there was no evidence of conspiracy.

The Orleans parish grand jury, at Garrison's behest, has indicted retired businessman Clay Shaw, 54, on a charge of conspiracy. Shaw is free on $10,000 bond. His trial date has not been set.

Lane, in his talk, derided Dallas, Tex., District Attorney Henry Wade, the Dallas police and the Warren Commission. He said President Johnson, Warren and Attorney-General Ramsey Clark are involved in suppression of evidence in the case.

"Now is the time for the president to act," Lane said. "If he does not act now, the American people in 1968 will have the time to act."

Lane, a New York lawyer and author of a book on the assassination called "Rush to Judgment," said Garrison had sat down with him and carefully gone over his case.

"Our two investigations, starting from separate points, have reached the same conclusion," Lane said.

In reply to a question, Lane denied he had said an agency of the U.S. government was involved. He said that what he really said was that "a powerful force in the country which was a part of the government structure was involved."

Garrison Witness Hides in Canada?

NEW ORLEANS (CP-AP) — An elusive man wanted for questioning in a continuing investigation into an alleged conspiracy to assassinate President John F. Kennedy in 1963 was reported to be in Canada Thursday.

Canadian authorities said they knew nothing about the matter. The New Orleans States-Item said Gordon Novel, 29, former tavern operator, wanted by District Attorney Jim Garrison as a material witness, is in Montreal.

The newspaper said it was told by a "responsible source" preparations are under way to return Novel here.

But Canadian immigration authorities and RCMP in Montreal and Ottawa and Montreal city police said they knew nothing.

Both forces in Montreal said neither has received a request from the U.S. for Novel's arrest. Such a request would come through the Canadian government and the arrest warrant would have to be seen by local officers before they could start any search. Novel left town last week just before a second subpoena was issued for him to appear before the Orleans Parish grand jury.

OUTLOOK FOR steelheaders on Vancouver Island rivers this weekend is excellent, but don't forget YOUR FISHING LICENCE EXPIRES TODAY.

Many anglers give up steelheading at this time of year. They will have had their fill of fish and just now rivers are full of kelt steelhead which have turned color and spawned or darkening fish. These fish are not too palatable in that condition, although they still provide plenty of sport on light tackle.

Fresh run fish are still entering the rivers and may be taken quite readily. The only trouble is you have to catch so many fish to get a bright one and this goes against the grain for some anglers. You, of course, should release the kelt and dark fish for aesthetic reasons alone, although conservationwise any fish is a spawner no matter what condition it is in or where it is caught.

If you are among those anglers who have had difficulty catching steelhead—and this includes most of us—now is the time the rivers contain most of the big sea-run rainbows and the time the tyro angler should meet with the most success... the time to learn steelheading.

In the Little Qualicum and Big Qualicum Rivers this week Ole Krongkaer and Gordon Taylor, of Burnaby, hooked into 33 fish in two days. There was only one keeper among the ones they headed.

Vancouver Island rivers were in good shape Thursday and as well as plenty of steelhead, most of them held cutthroats in the estuaries.

At this time of year the steelhead will take worms and so will the cutthroats, so there is a double chance of getting fish. A tin-bodied fly is the usual lure for the cutthroats as they come in for the emerging salmon fry.

The Kokulak has been better than the Cowichan for steelheading, but the Cowichan is providing some fair trout fishing in the lower reaches and around Skutz Falls. San Juan, Harris Creek and Nitinat have all been good. So have the Puntledge, Quinsam and Oyster Rivers. John Elbert reports 'he Salmon is still giving up beautiful big and bright steelhead and August Penik proved it by taking a 21.5-pounder last Sunday.

Campbell River Sportsman Centre steelhead derby ends this weekend, with Bill Clark in the lead with three steelhead weighing 6.15 pounds.

Garry Christensen, Len Francis and Mel Jasbec returned from a north island trip this week with tales of wonderful steelheading on the Keogh, Quatco, Clewex and Marble Rivers. They fished mostly the lower reaches, not far from the road bridges and had little difficulty in catching plenty of bright steelhead, but no big ones. Mostly they were 7, 8 and 9-pounders, with one 13-pounder.

Cold weather has held back the trout fishing in lakes, but some have been producing. Cowichan Lake has been good on troll; a Cowichan 4 spinner or roe and hobbler from the shore has been getting them in Quamichan.

Somenos hasn't been too good. Wolfe and Council, adjacent to the water board area at Leechtown, have been giving up bright fish. Miller Creek in Lower Campbell, Gossneek and Middle Quinsam have been fair in the Campbell River area.

OAK RAY is producing some pretty fair jackspinning fishing for fish up to seven pounds; Peider Bay has been good for bluebacks; in Saanich Inlet, a few springs are still being taken in Tod Inlet to Willis Point area and Willis Point-Ricky's Roost-The Boulder Run has been best for blues on Flatslides.

In Finlayson Arm there are plenty of bluebacks and chinooks but you have to get there for the bite. Bare Point at Chemainus, Ten Island and Thetis Island are still good for blues. Blues and chinooks are being taken off the Comox Ruoy and spin-casters are getting chinooks up to 18 pounds from the Campbell River government wharf.

BIG OUTDOOR event this weekend will be the Vancouver Island Retriever Club field trials Saturday and Sunday at Blenkinsop Lake, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days.

Saturday will see junior and qualifying dogs in action and all day Sunday open events will be held. There will be 18 junior dogs, 20 qualifying dogs, 18 open dogs competing, including last year's Canadian National champion and American Amateur champion black Labrador Captain of Lomac, owned and handled by Rudy Deering of Vancouver.

Andrew Pruitt of Tacoma and Pete McLellan of Ladner will be judges. The public is invited to turn out and watch the trials. It is a fine show to watch these highly-trained dogs work on ducks and pheasants over land and water courses.

IF ANYONE who read our Wednesday column about proposals for a Juan de Fuca sports fishing reserve figured the statistics showed netters taking 100-pound coho, they had a right to be surprised. Gremlins crept into the copy. It should have read 112 pounds, or only about 12 coho, were caught by net fishermen in Area 18 (tip of Saanich Peninsula to William Head) in 1966. Copy said 112 hundredweight. Comparison catch was 12 coho caught by netters in Area 19 in more than 600,000 coho caught by netters in Area 20 (William Head to about six miles above Port Renfrew).

Floyd Scores KO Wants Clay Next

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Floyd I've been waiting a long time Patterson, former heavyweight for this. Patterson, turned up for a possible fight with heavyweights, including Cassius Clay by knocking out Bill McMurray Thursday night in 2:37 of the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

Patterson didn't even give his little-known opponent time to get started before lowering the boom.

Patterson stung McMurray with a long left that dropped the Sacramento, Calif., fighter to his knees, then finished him off moments later with a lightning combination.

Patterson weighed 187, McMurray 208½.

"I'm ready to meet Clay," Patterson said, after the bout. "Any date is agreeable to me."

Blades Chalk Up Overtime Victory

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Dick Meissner's 38th goal of the season gave the Los Angeles Blades a 4-3 Western Hockey League victory in overtime before a crowd of 11,144 Thursday night to end the San Diego Gulls' longest winning streak of the year.

Meissner's 15-foot backhand at 2:11 of the sudden death beat San Diego goalie Les Binkley and broke the Gulls' five-game skid. The clincher also put an end to San Diego's three successive wins while rotating goalies Bob Champoux and Binkley.

San Diego alternated the goals each five minutes, but Binkley was touched for goals on three occasions, twice by Meissner and once by Jack Stanfield on a power play. Willie O'Ree's 32nd goal of the season.

Next games: Tonight—Victoria at Vancouver; Portland at Seattle; Los Angeles at Oakland.

Dodgers' Hit-Brigade Handcuffed by Pappas

By The Associated Press

Milt Pappas gave up just three hits in eight innings Thursday as Cincinnati Reds beat Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 in an exhibition baseball game.

Pappas, who went to the Reds in the trade with Baltimore for Frank Robinson last season, allowed the Dodgers their lone run in the fourth inning on Jim Lefebvre's home run. The Reds scored all three runs off Claude Osteen.

Harmon Killebrew hit his sixth homer of the exhibition season as Minnesota Twins edged New York Yankees 4-3. Dean Chance pitched six innings for the Twins and Ron Kline pitched two perfect frames in relief.

ALLOWED ONLY 3 HITS

Lee Stange and Hank Fischer stopped Baltimore on just three hits as Boston Red Sox beat the Orioles 1-0. A double by Tony Conigliaro drove in the winning Red Sox run in the sixth.

St. Louis picked up six runs in the first inning and Dick Hughes allowed just one hit in five innings, striking out seven as the Cardinals beat the New York Mets 2-0.

John Odom pitched five scoreless innings for Kansas City as the Athletics nipped Houston Astros 3-2. Odom allowed three hits and Kansas City got all its runs off Dave Giusti.

Bill Mazeroski, Donn Clendenon and Manny Mota each had three hits in leading Pittsburgh Pirates to an 11-4 triumph over Washington Senators. Steve Blass got the victory, giving up five hits and one unearned run in five innings.

Jim Northrup drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single in the ninth, giving Detroit a 2-1 triumph over Philadelphia Phillies. Jim Bunning held the Tigers to three hits and runs in seven innings.

Kon Holtzman held Cleveland to five hits in six innings and Chicago Cubs used 14 hits to beat the Indians 6-2. Ernie Banks knocked in two runs for the Cubs.

Juan Marichal, making his first mound appearance since ending his lengthy holdout, limited California to three singles in four innings as San Francisco Giants beat the Angels 7-5. Jim Davenport drove in three of the Giants' runs with a double.

Four Senior Rinks Have Title Chance

MONTREAL (CP)—Today marks the final day of regulation play in the third annual seniors curling championship and only four rinks are left in contention for the title.

Jack Bury's North Hill Curling Club rink from Calgary, Alberta faces Saskatchewan in today's 9:30 a.m. round and Northern Ontario in the 2 a.m. draw.

Saskatchewan and New Brunswick are locked in second spot with equal 6-2 records.

HAD NARROW SQUEAK

The Saskatchewan entry, guided by skip Hazen (Ducky) Pond of Prince Albert, had a narrow squeak in the ninth round before edging a determined Newfoundland rink led by Jack McCarthy of St. John's by a 7-5 margin.

Pond's rink trailed 4-2 after the sixth end, but rallied sharply to count two in each of the seventh and ninth ends and a single in the tenth. The Islanders could manage only one in the eighth, allowing Pond to put the game out of the hat.

Jim Murphy's Saint John, N.B., rink had a bye in the ninth round.

The only other possible contender for the championship is Vancouver's Frank Avery, his British Columbia foursome dropped a 10-7 decision to Mel Armstrong of Middleton, N.S., but retained an outside chance with a 5-3 record and two games to play.

Saskatchewan's other game today is against Ontario in the afternoon. New Brunswick meets Nova Scotia in the morning and Manitoba in the afternoon. British Columbia faces Manitoba and Newfoundland in its two remaining draws.

In other ninth round games, Northern Ontario extended its record to 3-5. Arnel Chisnell of Sudbury beat Winnipeg's Alex Lawrence 6-4. The loss left Manitoba with a 4-4 record.

P.E.I. beat Ontario 7-6 to move its mark to 4-5, as Dr. W. E. MacDonald's Charlottetown rink scored two in the tenth end to win 7-6 over Carl Asmusen of Kitchener, Ont.

The last left Ontario with a 4-4 record.

In afternoon play, Bury's Calgary rink got a scare before their 8-7 win over the Charlotte team. P.E.I. was leading going into the seventh end.

Alison Registers Startling Upset

WINNIPEG—Victoria's Alison Dayamith upset top-seeded Sharon Whittaker of Toronto and a former Victorian in the women's singles final of the Canadian closed badminton championships Thursday.

Miss Dayamith took the title with wins of 12-11, 12-10, over the 1965 champion who won a silver medal for Canada in the 1966 British Commonwealth Games.

Fivepinner Fashions New Record

WINNIPEG (CP)—Bob Galer of Burnaby, B.C., shattered a 13-year-old record Wednesday in winning the 1967 Canadian men's singles fivepin bowling championship.

He had an average of 290 for a total score of 2,900 compared with the previous record of 2,670 set by Dave Bissett at Windsor, Ont., in 1954.

Two other records were set during the two-day event.

Doris Joll of Oakville, Peterborough tied 2,881 to topple the 10-walker record of 2,715 set by Sue Walker in London, Ont. in 1963. Joll rolled one game of 425 starting with a spare followed by 10 strikes to win the ladies singles title.

Saskatoon's ladies team established a new mark in winning its event. The 12,965-point score was 677 points ahead of second-place Toronto and British Columbia's ladies from Vancouver scored 11,762 for third place.

BREAK RECORD

The Saskatooners surpassed the previous record of 12,419 set last year in Calgary by Toronto.

Winnipeg's mixed team emerged with the title on a 12-222 score with York West, Ont., taking second place with a 10-game total of 12,083. Saskatchewan's mixed team from Regina placed third with 11,853.

Plant Land-Mine at First

Mets Unveil Secret Weapon

By MILTON RICHMAN

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—The gag circulating the citrus circuit is that you have to keep your head up against the Mets or you may get it knocked off because they've planted a land-mine around first base.

Big, bulky Ron Swoboda, the butt of the gag, doesn't see any humor in it at all.

"I like a joke as well as anybody else, but I quit laughing ever since they all laughed at the way I was playing the outfield," says Swoboda, latest in a long line of heavyweights to be moved in to first base.

"I don't know where they eventually plan to play me, first base or the outfield, but I don't like being laughed at either place. I don't think I'm doing so badly."

Dodgers Like Canada

NEW YORK (CP) — Ramparts magazine says in 1966 between 2,500 and 3,000 American men, usually referred to as draft dodgers, moved to Canada from the United States.

It adds the Vietnam war has something to do with the departure of many others to Canada.

In an article by Toronto-born Donald Duncan in its April issue, the magazine says only half a dozen of some 160 "new Canadians" interviewed indicated they were homesick.

In spite of difficulties in finding work, most of those interviewed said they liked it in Canada and expressed no desire to return to the U.S.

Fugitive Names 'Culprits'

TORONTO (CP) — The Telegram says fugitive Elias Rabbiah has named people he claims were behind an attempted stock market fraud in 1965 in a statement delivered to the royal commission investigating the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp.

Rabbiah, whose whereabouts is unknown, is wanted in Canada and the United States on charges of fraud, uttering and conspiracy. He was founder of Racan Photo-Copy Corp. in 1960 and its president until 1964. Racan went into bankruptcy in 1965, shortly after Atlantic Acceptance collapsed.

The Telegram says Rabbiah gave his statement to a New York lawyer, Herbert Roth. It was relayed to the royal commission through the Ontario attorney-general's department.

TIME, MONEY

Racan was one of four companies involved in fake buy orders sent to several New York stock brokers from Nassau two years ago.

The Telegram quotes Rabbiah's statement as saying he spent considerable time and money in trying to discover the people responsible. The statement says that after he learned some names he received threatening phone calls.

A commission official said a statement has been received and information it contains is being checked "in the same way we check any information that comes into our hands."

Probers Clear Logexpo

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Dupuy, commissioner-general for Expo 67, said Thursday a provincial police investigation has discovered no foundation for any allegations of fraud in Logexpo, the fair's lodging service.

Speaking at a press conference, he said he has been told this by J. Adrien Robert, director of the Quebec Provincial Police.

He read out a statement by Mr. Robert which said: "Our investigators, in spite of a lengthy investigation, have been unable to discover any founded charges of fraud or gross negligence on the part of those involved in Logexpo."

New Forms Error-Prone

Tax Computer in Pain

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's new simplified tax returns are giving the revenue department a pain in the computer.

Taxpayer mistakes are running far higher than last year because of a new section in the forms regarding payment to the Canada Pension Plan.

Nevertheless, returns are coming into the national data centre just as fast as a year ago. The last available count is for March 23, when 3,156,384 of the expected 7,000,000 forms had been received.

The data centre's computer will be handling 240,000 returns per three-day cycle when it hits full tilt with approach of the April 30 filing deadline.

An error analysis is complete for 690,000 of the T1 Short forms filed by most employees. Mistakes turned up in 133,000 of these, almost one in five and up 20 per cent from last year. It was worse among T1 General forms, filed by employers, professional people, farmers, fishermen and people with large investment incomes. They made 12,000 mistakes in the first 34,000 returns analyzed, more than one in three and a rate 50 per cent higher than 1965.

A revenue department spokesman said that on both forms many taxpayers are either failing to deduct CPP payments from income or they are deducting the wrong amount.

The pension plan, which began Jan. 1, 1966, has been a burden to employers, who must make another calculation to complete the T4 slips stating employee income.

WHAT DOES 501 MEAN?

"501" is not a fibre name. It is a Du Pont certification mark that stands for tested value. Many carpets certified "501" actually exceed the requirements.

The FIVE tough Du Pont tests that nylon carpets must pass for "501" certification are:

1. FIBRE QUALITY TEST
To assure resistance to hard wear, spots and stains.
2. FIBRE DENSITY TEST
To give you elegance of lush, deep pile.
3. "FUZZ" PROOF
Pile yarns securely locked in to prevent them pulling up and creating a "fuzzy" appearance.
4. COLOUR RETENTION TEST
Invite the sun into your home. These carpets will resist fading.
5. STABILITY TEST
Let the group dance on it! Your carpet will not ripple or change shape.

WHY CENTURY FASHION?

Century Fashion is woven to Jordans order by Harding Carpets; Canada's leading mill. The experience and integrity of our two firms assures you of confidence in your purchase.

While Russia Plans Laugh Day

Comics' City Silent

MOSCOW (AP) — Saturday is to be the first official Laughter Day in the Soviet Union — except in the sunny Black Sea port of Odessa. The idea is to put a new twist on April Fool's Day.

Theatres, music halls and movies will show comedies only. The idea to turn April 1 into a national comedy production came from the newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta (Literary Gazette). It noted that the 19th-century Russian satirist Nikolai Gogol was born April 1.

Gogol is known here for his early humorous works. His grim short stories, better known in the West, appeared later.

The paper said many Soviet cities responded favorably to the idea but Odessa, known as the home of some of the greatest Soviet comic writers, was strangely silent.

The paper wired Odessa officials and asked why. It said it got this reply: "Odessa is laughing all year round. Let it rest one day."

Boston Stages All Mod Opera

BOSTON (AP) — The Opera Company of Boston went mod about Igor Stravinsky Wednesday night, staging his only full-length opera. The Rake's Progress, in swinging 1967 terms.

Costumes were mod — mini-skirts and vinyl; lighting was psychedelic; dances were staged by the darling of the discotheque, Killer Joe Pro. Surprisingly, the opera which Stravinsky set in the 18th century and wrote in an individualistic interpretation of neo-Mozart style, proved a natural for the switched-on treatment it received at the Back Bay Theatre.

When Tom Rakewell is lured to the city by Nick Shadow, he finds himself in a discotheque instead of a brothel. When he awakens, in Act II, bored by his new life, he is discovered wearing a Stravinsky sweatshirt, reclining under photographs of Allen Ginsberg and Timothy Leary.

"If there was a big enough market for limousines, we'd build limousines"

Earl Brownridge, President of American Motors in Canada, talks about the auto industry and where his company stands.

Today, there are two groups of car buyers. To one, a car is primarily a means of transportation. To the other, a car is more of a means of enjoyment.

American Motors is in the unique position of being able to satisfy both groups!

For those who want basic transportation, American Motors offers the Rambler American—the original compact car—now at a new low price: $2272 for a 220 2-door sedan, F.O.B. Brampton. At this price, the Rambler American bridges the gap between the too-small imports and the too-costly compacts. To any one of the 100,000 Canadian families caught in this price/size predicament, the new price structure of the Rambler American means that they can now get the car they need and want at the price they want to pay: a Canadian-built compact car at a price competitive with the imports!

Rambler American 220 2-door sedan

How could we lower our prices when everything else is going up? We stopped to take a fresh look at the whole problem. Then we decided to eliminate the annual facelift. By trimming away the cost of yearly model changes, we could sell the car for quite a bit less. So we got the full support of our dealers to drop the price of a 220 2-door sedan by $222. And the prices of all other models of the American have come down accordingly.

Will it work? You bet it will. This is a positive marketing approach and one that has already received considerable praise from economists and governments. This is probably the only price reduction of any consequence to happen in years. And we're proud of the fact.

For those who want more than just basic transportation, American Motors offers the luxurious, full-size Ambassador and the spirited, intermediate-sized Rebel.

Ambassador DPL—one of the 9 better-built Ambassador models

The Ambassador and the Rebel are not affected by our policy of stabilized styling on the compact American. These cars are designed and built to meet the appearance, performance, comfort and luxury requirements of about 400,000 potential Canadian buyers each year. And we'll continue to give those buyers exactly what they want; fresh and new every model year.

Rebel SST—one of 9 new intermediate-size models

Why do we have these two different policies? Because of the different needs of the two different kinds of car buyers. And we're in the automobile business, to satisfy the needs of the consumer and make a profit. And we fully intend to continue to do both. We build and sell sedans, hardtops, convertibles and wagons by the thousands, and if we felt there was a big enough market for limousines, we'd build limousines, too.

This is a strong and growing company and we're really only at the beginning of a very exciting period in our history. In 1965, sales of our full-size Ambassador tripled. In '66, they rose again. For this year, we know they'll go higher, still. And with the new policy and the lower price for the compact Rambler American, we're sure that sales of that model will double, too. That's real growth for our complete family of cars.

What's coming up from American Motors? That would be telling trade secrets. But this much I can tell you. Idea cars like the AMX will soon become realities. Work is well under way on our cars for the 1970's and they show some of the freshest, most progressive thinking in the industry.

The new policy regarding the compact American is only another of many exciting developments that are going to rock this business. And that bit of "inside" information is not "rumoured" or "reported". It's for real.

Portland Singers Running In Today

Thirty-five students from Portland, Ore., will arrive on the noon boat from Port Angeles today. The young people call themselves Sing-Out, Portland. They will run up Douglas Street, singing as they go, to Centennial Square, where they will give a concert from 1:15 to 2 p.m.

They will sing at Mayfair shopping centre at 7:30 p.m. Friday and at Victoria high school at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Changes Weighed

B.C. May Help Poor Patients

Changes are likely in the status of welfare patients who are supported in private hospitals on an allowance of $230 a month, Social Welfare Minister Campbell told Ald. Lily Wilson Thursday.

Ambulance Fund

Hospital Trips Eased

Langford volunteer firemen are offering a family plan, which for $5 will cover all emergency trips to hospital for a year, as part of a campaign to raise $12,000 for a new ambulance.

So far the firemen and the co-operating Colwood volunteer firemen have raised about $3,800 through a canvass of Langford businesses and some Colwood businesses.

View Royal and Metehast businesses will be canvassed next.

AVERAGE $12

Average cost of an emergency trip said Langford Fire Chief Alan LeQueune, was $12.

The area covered by the ambulance extends from the Malahat to the Sooke border, and includes View Royal, Colwood and Metehast.

He said Victoria residents who wanted to help the drive would also be covered if they had an accident and needed an ambulance from the area his department served.

Acting on a directive from Victoria city council, Ald. Wilson sought the interview on behalf of 237 indigent patients whose position was somewhat shaky following a declaration from several private hospital operators that they were unable to support a patient on $230 a month.

With Ald. Wilson on what she described as "very satisfactory interview" was Coun. Edith Gunning of Saanich.

NOT SPECIFIED

The minister did not specify what changes his department had in mind, Ald. Wilson said Thursday, but he did say that he was concerned and was looking into the whole matter.

The minister did not say that there would be any increase in the $230 provincial allowance, recently raised from $215, Ald. Wilson added.

NO EVICTIONS

Mr. Campbell said the government was looking into the whole matter of welfare patients being accommodated in private hospitals and stressed that there would be no "evictions" no matter what ensued, the alderman reported.

"We were fortunate to get an interview at such an early date following the meeting of council," Mrs. Wilson said.

"We were courteously treated and the minister seemed very interested in the problem," she added.

A Practically Purring Burro

The burros that bray in the spring, tra la, are not to be compared with this lucky young quadruped who is practically purring with contentment as Pamela Harris, 20, a freshman majoring in physical education at the University of Victoria, gives him a brushing. Her reason? It is spring, and it seemed like a good idea. — (Peter Forrest)

Power Boats Ready For Tough Log Race

History will be made Saturday when 40 of the West Coast's finest power boats leave Victoria Harbor for the first time in the eighth annual Gulf of Georgia predicted-log race.

On view in Inner Harbor tonight will be millions of dollars' worth of cruisers with crews waiting to try their skills as seamen and navigators.

A predicted log race is essentially simple, but very tricky in practice.

Before starting on the 70-mile run across the gulf, skippers declare the number of revolutions for each engine and the course that will be steered on each leg of the race. The object is to finish ahead of Point Atkinson light. There will be seven trophies for the winners.

Eight of the entries are from Victoria, one is from Nanaimo, two are from Seattle and the remainder from the Lower Mainland.

From the Royal Victoria Yacht Club will be Don Telford's Tussler, Tony Penn's Island, Jim Beattie's Doken and F. H. Francis' Moya II. Capital City Yacht Club entrants include Fred Robinson's Con Dios, J. H. Bailey's Fascination, Jack Simpson's Senga and Dr. H. D. Middleton's Datsopa. The lone Nanaimo entry is E. W. Harding's Playboy.

Entries will be received up to 10:30 p.m. today.

The course starts off Ogden Point breakwater light and follows Juan De Fuca Strait, Mayor Channel, Baynes Channel, Sidney Channel, Moreby Passage, Swanson Channel, Captains Passage, Trincomali Channel, Porlier Pass and Georgia Strait to finish at Point Atkinson light.

Curtains Burn

Victoria fire department extinguished a curtain fire which caused only minor damage at 1802 Belmont about 12:40 p.m. Thursday.

Buccaneer Day June 3

Esquimalt's third annual Buccaneer Day will be held June 3, and possibly extend into the next day, when an inter-district barrel race down the Gorge is scheduled.

At a preliminary meeting of the Buccaneer Day committee Thursday, it was decided that events would follow the lines of previous programs, with sports, dances, concerts and picnics centred in the Bullen Park and Sports Centre areas.

Lions Plan Junior Junior Course

Back-Seat Drivers 'Qualified'

Back seat drivers — with qualifications, too — will be increasing in numbers in the Greater Victoria area after July 1.

The South Van Isle Lions Club from Thumb Village will be opening at Colwood on the central grounds on that date to give driver training to seven-to-11-year-olds.

Long president Vernon Ford said Thursday that similar courses are held in Vancouver, and the greatest impact is usually seen upon parents.

"The youngsters become very safety-conscious and start pointing out any infractions they think their parents are committing," said Mr. Ford.

Young drivers will manoeuvre 11 model cars along roads painted on a fenced area of 80 feet by 100 feet.

It will be the first completed unit of the proposed recreational complex there.

An Olympic-sized swim pool — the centennial project for the Langford-Colwood-Metchosin area — will not be completed until fall.

The Lions have raised $2,500 to start the driving project which is expected to cost some $6,000.

Typical street signs and an automatic signal light will be erected alongside miniature roads, and most driving situations will be simulated for the youngsters.

The Lions are hoping local businessmen and organizations will take over lots on the model streets.

"They can put up miniatures of their own stores, complete with their names and neon lights," said Mr. Ford. "The more realistic the route, the more the youngsters will realize the distractions a driver has to cope with."

He said initially they can start the project on the blacktopped area, with just the roads painted on, and the lights and signs.

Roadside buildings will be put up when possible.

An instructor will be appointed and he will give groups a 10-minute instruction period, and then send them out along a set route, about a 30-minute drive.

The pint-sized drivers will get certificates to show they have taken the course.

Hit-Run Car Kills Girl, 11

An 11-year-old girl was fatally struck by a hit and run car after 10 p.m. on Craigflower Road near Admirals Road Thursday night.

Geraldine Jones of Port Renfrew was dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Police found her crumpled body about 12 feet off the road. The young girl was visiting friends with her parents at the Songhees Indian Reserve.

NO DESCRIPTION

She is the 11th traffic fatality south of the Malahat in 1967.

RCMP Inspector George McKay said there was no definite description of the hit and run car. At the same time he asked that anyone in the area at 10:20 p.m. come forward as anything they might have seen could be helpful to the police investigation.

STARTED SEARCH

Cars from RCMP Colwood detachment and Esquimalt police immediately began a search of the area and a general broadcast was put out on the car.

Inspector McKay said tests would be run today in an effort to determine the make of the hit-and-run car.

The girl was walking with her sister, Yvonne, 15. Police believe they were walking with their backs to traffic.

Police said an inquest had been ordered.

Billet Misplaced

Lost Boy Scout Took Right Trail

A taxi driver brought a lost Boy Scout to city police headquarters late Thursday night.

In town for ceremonies awarding Queen's Scout parchments, the lad went sightseeing in the evening and forgot his billet address.

With the rules of citycraft in mind, and keeping his head, he found a cab and was driven to the police station, there to ask a policeman what to do.

The constables kidded him a bit, then called the Colonist to obtain the name of a senior Scout official who could help.

The official reported the whole thing sorted out within half an hour.

"He went about it all the right way," the official agreed.

University Experiment

Gifted Students Share Learning

By BILL STAVDAL

Nearly 100 gifted B.C. high school students gather today at the University of Victoria for an exciting experiment in learning. The event is a humanities and science symposium, which gives the teen-agers a chance to present their original work in sciences and the arts before critical fellow students.

The group will be addressed this morning by famed geophysicist Dr. J. Tuzo Wilson of the University of Toronto.

JOINT SPONSORS

It will also hear lectures by University of Victoria historian Dr. Sydney Jackman, Professor Tony Emery of the fine arts school, and Ronald Jeffels, dean of student affairs.

The two-day event is sponsored jointly by the university and the IBM Corporation of Canada.

They have paid transportation costs for 29 top students who participate in discussions, plus 52 runners-up and 26 teachers.

The visitors come from as far away as Kimberley, Dawson Creek and Whitehorse, Y.T.

Two girls will represent Victoria. They are Christina Andree, 3655 Beach Drive, and Heather Heppenstall, of 2331 Middowne Road.

Miss Andree will read poems of her own composition. Miss Heppenstall will relate her experiments with the leopard frog.

"WHAT PLEASURE!"

Opening ceremonies at 9 a.m. in the Education-Arts Building theatre will be followed by Dr. Wilson's discussion of changes in geological and planetary science.

Dr. Cary F. Goulson, chairman of the organizing committee, expressed enthusiasm for the project Thursday.

"What a pleasure to get this side of young people, after hearing so much of the other side," said Dr. Goulson. He said he feels independent scholarship is increasing and improving in today's high schools.

"I think there is more emphasis on research methods and the discovery of things," he said. "Undoubtedly there is more assurance and maturity in researching topics."

Home-Made Saucers Not Funny

Sea Flares Costly

Two marina operators who get called out when flares are sighted over the water don't think home-made "flying saucers" are the best thing that ever happened to a rescue service.

Bob Wright of the Oak Bay Marina, who spent two and a half hours Tuesday night on a vain search between the marina and James Island, feels they are all right as long as they are let loose over land.

"People don't get too concerned when they see flares over land but when they are sighted over water they cause quite a fuss," he said.

Mr. Wright was referring to a plastic cleaning bag found by Saanich police which could be made to fly by placing candles on two sticks attached to the bottom of the bag. Heat from the candles drives the bag aloft. "I wonder if anyone realizes just what is involved when flares are sighted," said Mr. Wright, recalling his latest call-out and search.

He pointed out when flares or what were thought to be flares were spotted Tuesday night two police cars, one from Saanich and one from Oak Bay, were sent into action to try to pinpoint the spot where the flares were seen.

"Gordon Head radio was working on the search for more than two hours, air-sea rescue sent a plane to check out the report. All that costs money," said Mr. Wright.

He added that on a night water search there was always the danger of running into drifting logs when visibility was bad.

"If people must play with those things I wish they would wait until the wind isn't blowing offshore," he said.

Jeff Simpson of Van Isle Marina agreed it could be frustrating to be called out on a fruitless search, especially if it was caused by one of the home-made "saucers."

"Now that people know how to make them I suppose we will get all kinds of these," he said.

Greater Victoria police stations listed only one report of a sighting Thursday.

FLYING OBJECT drifts through Colonist city room, while outside in the night, mysterious flying objects had Victorians leaping to phone paper and police. How to make flying object: Sew up one end of light plastic garment bag, tape cross of balsa wood strips in other end, stick eight halves of birthday candles, to cross, light up and away it flies. This one took reporter George Igals by surprise.

Mr. and Mrs. U. W. Holman pictured cutting their diamond wedding anniversary cake.—(Jim Ryan)

Married 60 Years

Mr. and Mrs. U. W. Holman, 1000 Craigdarroch Road, were honored Tuesday evening on the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary at a family dinner in Holyrood House.

Mr. Holman was born 88 years ago at Croydon, England, and his wife, who is 84 years old, was born at Lambeth, England. They were married March 28, 1907, at West Croydon Congregational Church. Mr. Holman served in the East Surrey Regiment in First World War. Prior to emigrating to Canada in 1927 he was employed as a publisher's representative in London.

Shortly after their arrival in Canada Mr. and Mrs. Holman and family settled on a farm south of Vermilion, Alta. They moved to Victoria in 1942 and Mr. Holman worked at Yarrow's Limited until his retirement in 1949. They are both music lovers and still enjoy entertaining at family gatherings with Mr. Holman singing and his wife accompanying him on the piano. Mr. Holman sang in St. John's Church choir until recently. Swimming is still a favorite pastime with Mr. Holman and he manages to get in several swims a week at Crystal Gardens. Mrs. Holman is a member of the White Cane Club and attends the meetings regularly.

The couple has three sons, Mr. S. A. (Sam) Holman, Mr. F. J. (Fred) Holman, of Victoria, and Mr. U. W. (Urban) Holman of Ponoka, Alta., and three daughters, Mrs. A. (Mabel) Withers, Victoria; Mrs. A. (Barbara) Schenk, Moon Lake, Alta.; and Mrs. T. H. (Evelyn) Dale, Edmonton. They also have 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

A musical evening, led by Mr. Jack Lenaghan, followed the family dinner. Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Boyd of Balfour Avenue. Congratulatory messages were received from Her Majesty The Queen, His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, Prime Minister Lester Pearson, Premier W. A. C. Bennett, Hon. W. N. Chant and Mayor Hugh Stephen.

Dear Ann Landers: I am sick and tired of people looking at doctors as if they were God or something. I had an experience that I wish you would print. It would help put things in the proper perspective.

I had major surgery recently. A few days after the operation my doctor came by for a routine check. After chatting a few minutes he said he was sure he had lost his pencil in my bed. I said I didn't think it was possible, but he ignored me and began to tear the bed apart.

After about 10 minutes of rummaging around he found the pencil in his pocket. Every bit of linen was off the bed by that time and the pillow case was turned inside out and thrown on the floor.

I mentioned this incident to a friend and was told the doctor was testing my reaction. I was not in a psychiatric hospital and I can't understand this sort of thing.

Please check with your medical consultants and find out what in the world the doctor was doing. Thank you.—RITA.

Dear Rita: My medical consultants believe the doctor should be tested for HIR reactions because he sounds a little off his rocker.

Dear Ann Landers: A few years ago my two married sisters and I were complaining about our husbands' quirks. Mom told us a story that made a big impression on all of us. I'd like to pass it on.

Mom said the night her last child was married (she has been a widow for years) she went back to her apartment and suddenly the emptiness of the place hit her all at once. She said it was really silly because her last-to-marry was a son who wasn't home much anyway. But suddenly she realized he wouldn't be home at all. And that was the awful part.

She told my sisters and me to stop picking on our husbands, that most of the things wives complain about are not worth mentioning. From that day on I stopped nagging and our marriage has been a lot better ever since.—ONE WHO LEARNED IN TIME.

Dear Ann Landers: A few weeks ago a friend invited our daughter (age 2) to a birthday party. The birthday boy was three.

It was made clear that parents were welcome and they would be served refreshments along with the children.

I asked if the adults would be served cocktails and was told, "No. This party is for the children."

My husband overheard the conversation and said, "I am not going." He made it plain that he didn't care about the drink, but he thought the hostess was most ungracious. I agreed and told the hostess how we felt.

If adults want a cocktail the hostess should be happy to serve them one any time. In our home we wouldn't dream of doing it any other way. We would like your views on this.—MRS. S. L. L.

Dear Mrs. S. L. L.: I am with the hostess. It's a sad state of affairs when someone who does not serve liquor is considered ungracious.

A mother who decides against serving cocktails to parents attending the birthday party of a child has good sense, in my opinion. I applaud her.

Salt Spring

Famous Grandma Visitor

By BEA HAMILTON

FULFORD — It is not often that the heroine of a powerful true story visits Salt Spring Island but Easter Week saw just such a person, Mrs. Sheridan (Judy) Lawrence, wife of the late famous and almost legendary figure of the far northland — Sheridan Lawrence.

Mrs. Lawrence is as famous as her late husband. Meeting her, it is easy to understand how she captured the people in the north country.

Mrs. Lawrence and her daughter Mrs. McLeod (Velma) of Edmonton, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Trufutt of Beddis Road.

Last Sunday being Easter, the Trufutts brought their famous guests to St. Mary's morning service and later visited Dromore, the home of the writer and her family.

"They all call me Grandma," said Mrs. Lawrence. And that is not surprising. Mother of 15 children (13 of whom are living), grandma to 50 grandchildren and great-grandmother to 85 scattered children, she has earned the affectionate title.

Mrs. Lawrence, at 88, is energetic and loves to travel, which is well, for she is constantly "keeping an eye" on her large family and visiting them all. "I must see that they are behaving well," she laughed. Many are in the Peace River area.

Mrs. Lawrence last week flew from Los Angeles where she was staying with one of her daughters, landed in Vancouver and came on to Salt Spring Island. "I never get tired," says this wonderful person.

On Easter Monday, Mrs. Lawrence and her daughter visited Mrs. Eugene Myles in Victoria.

Eugene Myles wrote the book "The Emperor of the North," telling the story of the Lawrence family and other early-day settlers in the north country.

Parents of both Sheridan Lawrence and his wife went to the north country working among the Indians for the Anglican Church.

When these visitors leave Salt Spring, Mrs. Lawrence will travel to Medicine Hat, and from there visit her daughter Mrs. Clark (Edith), and from there — to wherever she fancies. There are always so many children to visit and Grandma Lawrence aims to do just that.

Time to Serve Lamb

Lamb is as symbolic of spring as the blossoms so now is the time to think of serving this versatile meat.

There are many interesting ways to serve spring lamb but a roast leg of lamb is high on the list. The stuffing in the following recipe adds a slightly different and delicious flavor.

One (7-lb.) leg of lamb, 1 clove garlic, 1 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, 1 Tbsp. soft butter, ¼ tsp. powdered ginger, 1 Tbsp. lemon juice, 1 cup currant jelly.

Couple to Live In Peace River

Following their marriage at St. John's Anglican Church Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lynn Williams left for Peace River, Alta., where they'll make their new home.

Cornelia Baker officiated at the recent wedding ceremony for the former Jo-An Rita Halfhide, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril G. Halfhide, 3047 Balfour Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Williams, 3075 Larkdowne.

Easter lilies and spring flowers decorated the church for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was lovely in a floor-length gown of norganza featuring a sheer capelet bordered in lace. Matching lace accented the fitted bodice and encircled the controlled skirt. A detachable train in sheer fabric fell gracefully from the back waistline. A cluster of roses held the bride's bouffant, elbow-length veil and pale yellow daffodils and ivy were in her cascade bouquet.

Mrs. B. Prior, matron of honor, Mrs. L. Brazeau, bridesmaid, and Miss Joan Williams, bridesmaid, wore floor-length gowns of self-embroidered brocade in rose tones. They wore headpieces, made by the groom's mother, tulle flowers in tone and carried colonial bouquets of tulips and spring flowers.

Little Miss Shelly Stewart as flower girl was in a similarly styled gown and carried a basket of spring flowers.

Mr. Fred Pye was best man. Ushering guests to their seats were Mr. William Nesbitt and Mr. Roger Halfhide.

Mr. R. O. Stewart proposed the toast to his niece at the reception which followed in The Inn on Cook Street. Centring the head table was an attractive cake made by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Stewart. Dancing followed to the music of Mr. Rick Acres' orchestra.

For travelling the new Mrs. Williams wore a rose wool tweed suit and black accessories. A red rose corsage complemented her ensemble.

Student Interviews Senator

Mrs. Mary Paterson, 1843 Crescent, received word that her 18-year-old granddaughter, Miss Adele Paterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie S. Paterson, Spring Valley, Calif., covered a special student press conference with Senator Thomas Kuchel, California Republican, for the Evening Tribune, San Diego. Miss Paterson's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary H. A. Samuelson, also lives here.

A senior at Mount Miguel High School, Spring Valley, Miss Paterson is a native of Victoria. Mr. and Mrs. Paterson who are both well known here moved to Seattle about 11 years ago and three years later to the San Diego area.

Miss Paterson is a journalism student and a member of the Interscholastic Press Association, the group that sponsored the recent press conference with Senator Kuchel in Culver City. More than 200 high school journalism students from throughout California took part in the conference. Miss Paterson's by-line interview appeared in the March 20 issue of the Evening Tribune.

Death Traps

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario supervising coroner, Wednesday warned parents that many cribs for small children are death traps.

Dr. Cotnam said in an interview parents should not buy cribs which have slats more than four inches apart. He said four children have strangled in cribs in Ontario in the last year.

Dr. Cotnam said there is no regulatory body for the design of children's furniture and it is time manufacturers corrected the situation.

Members of the Ladies' Division of Colwood Golf Club played under sunny skies Thursday morning at their annual spring opening. A delectable luncheon in the club house followed the two-ball foursome. Leaving the course to take in the luncheon are

Teen-Aged Girls 'Talk Up' Canada's World Fair

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two of Expo 67's busiest advance "men" are teen-aged girls rounding out 12,000 miles to talk up Canada's world fair.

"If there's anyone in the country who hasn't heard about the event by now," said the two, "We're sorry we missed them."

On their tour through the Canadian provinces, blonde Mary Hallam and brunette Diane Leblanc both 19, actually represented the $4 million pavilion which is co-sponsored by Canadian Pacific Railway and Cominco, two giants in world industry.

"But the farther west we got, the more we also talked up the whole fair," said Miss Leblanc. They visited every province, every major city and some not so major, in a two-month trip made on "anything that travels except dog sled."

They and their two woman companions, in charge of arrangements, flew, used train, bus, car, even ferries on the trip. They called on newspapers, were interviewed on radio and television, and talked to civic groups as time would allow.

With them were Charlotte Bronstein, with the Montreal public relations firm promoting the Canadian Pacific-Cominco pavilion, and Madeleine Quenel, of the Montreal office of CP.

A few days in New York was their only state-side visit. The teen-agers don't know specifically why they were selected from all the applicants for hostess jobs at the pavilion.

"Maybe it was our intelligence," quipped Miss Hallam, who's from Montreal and was a sophomore at the University of British Columbia.

"It was probably our personalities," laughed Miss Leblanc, who is from Sherbrooke, Quebec, and was a freshman at Bishop's University, at Lennoxville, Canada.

Actually, both were fact-finders, but add on attractiveness, ease in meeting people, and their language skills, which will be requisite for the international exposition opening April 28 and running through October. Miss Hallam speaks English and French; Miss Leblanc, English, French, German and Spanish.

Their ages were a factor too; the accent at the pavilion is on "the positive contribution and involvement of today's youth in the world which surrounds them."

The teen-agers' 12,000 miles were filled with experiences for two who had not travelled widely and had no radio or television appearances.

Both travelled in the uniform which they and 38 other hostesses will wear at the pavilion. These were sleeveless knit dresses in an orange and yellow fine geometric pattern, topped with bright yellow side-buttoned jackets with burnt orange banding. Orange berets, shoes and purses completed the uniforms, from the design studios of Richard Loran of Montreal.

"We said after two months in them we didn't care if we ever wore orange again," said Miss Hallam. "We went shopping here in New York and I looked around and there was Diane trying on an orange dress."

Centennial Exhibition

Student Art Live, Creative

By INA D. D. UTHOFF

The Greater Victoria Centennial Society under the leadership of Jerry Gosley has been responsible for quite a few worthwhile projects during the past year.

On Tuesday morning I went down to Centennial Square to see the latest exhibition of school art, now in the limelight at the City Hall.

There are many entries, as very handsome money prizes are being given in the different age groups, from $25 to $150 and that is a large amount for a teenage school boy or girl to win for a painting, drawing, or piece of modelling.

ALL SCHOOLS

Students in public, private or independent schools in the Greater Victoria area, including the city of Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Saanich and Central Saanich have been invited to take part by submitting work started prior to the commencement of the 1966-67 school year. The work has been divided into four sections: primary, intermediate, junior and senior, and has been judged for the creative ability of the student in terms of ideas and his capacity to communicate them in terms of color and composition.

The theme Canada has been chosen for representation in different types of artistic expression and in a wide range of techniques.

CONTEMPORARY

There are some excellent collages in cement, metal string and paint that might easily be included in some of the important exhibitions of the year in the art galleries.

The constructions in parts of machines, tools, rails, nails, fired clay are all moving with the trends in contemporary art. Some of the modelling shows promise. I felt that the small-scale Bilingualism had the makings of a big idea.

COURAGE SHOWN

The Canadian scene plays an important part in the drawings and paintings, while the groups of figures in history are all there.

What courage the young people have in their choice of subjects! I was very much amused by the drawing of Sir James Douglas Strolling Through Canadian Woods.

Then there is the Bison Hunt, Beavers, Fishing Boats, Mounties, panels based on Indian design and the more creative From the Midst of the Forests Came A Nation.

VITALITY

More than 2,000 entries were submitted by local students in this art contest, and most of them are packed with vitality.

The judging must have been an exhausting job for the five experts chosen to deal with it, but it has been successful in showing us what a bright future Victoria has in the field of art if even only a few of these talented young people justify the belief we have in them.

PLENTY OF WORK

The unemployment rate in Australia is about 1½ per cent of the work force.

No Slowdown Likely On Unification—Pearson

CALGARY (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson Thursday squelched speculation he might use his influence to delay implementation of the armed forces unification bill after it is passed.

He told a press conference unification obviously will take time and the government had made this clear. "But this doesn't mean, as was interpreted in some quarters, that I have begun to weaken."

The prime minister arrived in Calgary Wednesday on his first western trip of 1967 and received an honorary degree, Doctor of the University of Calgary, at a special convocation.

He told reporters Thursday comment by Opposition Leader

Annie McVie Elected To Her 19th Term

A charter member of the Senior Citizens' Campaign Council was re-elected secretary-treasurer for her 19th term Monday in the group's annual meeting in the Silver Threads Centre.

Mrs. Robert (Annie) McVie is one of only two members still active in the group which formed as the Old Age Assistance Council in 1937 in Prince Robert House, and has since had four homes in the city before its present use of the Silver Threads.

NEW DELEGATES

As a centennial project, Mrs. McVie will help compile a history of the council, which was formed for the purpose of bringing cheer into the lives of older citizens and shut-ins.

Lawrence Ryan, representing the Victoria Labor Council, and W. G. Armstrong, representing the Senate Old Age Pensioners, were received as new delegates to the council.

Reports of committees showed that the council provided 59 sick and needy pensioners with sheets and blankets at Christmas, and 42 shut-ins were entertained before Christmas by a car ride to see the lights.

Society Honors

A. H. Wills

A. H. Wills of Victoria was made a life member of the Victoria and Vancouver Island Multiple Sclerosis Society, at a recent meeting.

In making the presentation, president W. H. Phillips expressed appreciation for "many years of devoted service on behalf of the society."

Mr. Phillips told society members the newly appointed executive director of the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada, John F. Peterson, is expected to visit the local society early in April.

Standing committee chairman for 1967:

George M. Smith, patient-aid; Cdr. D. J. Williams, ways and means; C. F. Cunget, social; J. L. Smith, hospital planning; D. E. Harris, transportation; W. H. Phillips, finance.

Mrs. K. C. Gilbert will represent the Golden Key Auxiliary on the executive board.

Saanich Names Cleanup Dates

Saanich's big spring cleanup starts Monday.

The municipality's public works department has arranged for an area-by-area pickup of winter refuse at no charge to homeowners.

Saanich has been divided into five areas for the campaign, which will last until April 14. However, officials point out that pickups will be made in certain districts only on the days specified and there will be no return trips.

SIZE, WEIGHT

The material, of which no article should be larger than a hot water tank or weigh more than 100 pounds, should be piled in front of homes at 8 a.m. the following days:

April 3 — Area north of Gorge, Portage Inlet and the city of Victoria boundary east of Wilkinson Road; south of West Saanich Road; west of Douglas Street and Patricia Bay Highway.

April 5 — Area north of the city boundary, east of Douglas Street and Patricia Bay Highway; south of Royal Oak Avenue; west of Shelbourne Street and Cordova Bay.

OUTER AREAS

April 10 — All of Saanich east of Shelbourne Street.

April 11 — All of Saanich east of West Saanich Road and north of Royal Oak Avenue.

April 13 — All of Saanich west of West Saanich Road and Wilkinson Road.

The public works department has asked that there be no rocks, stones, broken bricks or concrete, garbage or garden refuse or inflammable liquids left for pickup. Bundles must be packaged or tied securely.

The operation is separate from normal garbage collections.

War Cry: 'Bye, Bye Blackbird'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Destruction of crops by the red-winged blackbird has reached a level which "can no longer be tolerated," delegates to the North American conference on blackbird depredation in agriculture here were told Thursday.

Dr. Roy M. Kottman, dean of the college of agriculture and home economics at Ohio State University, told farm and wildlife officials that the red-winged species has increased at an amazing rate, causing widespread destruction of crops. Corn is especially vulnerable, Kottman said, but oats, wheat and fruits also are being hurt. Thirteen states have been classified "severe damage" areas.

Kottman said farmers using "scare" tactics have only served to "push the birds further out and distribute them better."

Wildlife biologists and farm authorities from all sections of the U.S. and Canada are attending the conference.

Conference Fosters Fun

Dancing, swimming and an unscheduled pillow fight have been entertainment for 21 teenagers — all from foster and group homes on Vancouver Island and Greater Vancouver — attending three-day conference aimed at improving provincial government's child welfare program. Chinese Province Shaken by Quake

HONG KONG (UPI) — A strong earthquake rocked Red China's Hopei province Monday and extensive damage probably resulted, it was disclosed Thursday.

A spokesman for Japanese Central Meteorological Agency in Tokyo said the quake was comparable to one that struck Niigata, Japan, several years ago, destroying or damaging 28,000 homes, and washing away thousands of acres of farmland.

The agency recorded the quake Monday and wall posters

Sooke Will Study Street Lighting

A committee has been formed in Sooke to study the question of starting a street lighting plan in the improvement area.

At the annual meeting of the fire protection district ratepayers were told that it would cost $1,080 (about one-third of a mill) to put street lights on the Sooke Road from the Sooke River bridge to Maple Avenue.

Howard Elder, Robert Helme and Mrs. Beatrice Morrison are on the committee.

Robert Gibson was elected trustee in place of resigning Amos Braulin.

It was reported that the West Coast ambulance had answered 76 calls during 1966 — seven fewer than the previous year.

A record number of firemen volunteers were reported by Fire Chief Raymond Pimlott, who said 3,500 man-hours had been put in at practice sessions.

NINE FIRES

The department attended nine fires, occupying 1,460 man-hours.

A new home truck had been bought, and the No. 2 truck modernized.

Mrs. Helen Montgomery of the Smokettes — the women's auxiliary — reported 13 members in the group, which had organized baby-sitting courses and bought fire equipment during the year.

The wall posters, deviating from their normal fare of propaganda, located the epicenter of quake at a point 93 miles south of Peking.

The posters gave no report of injuries or damage, the Kyodo news agency said. Its correspondents said the posters were put up by Red Guards and contained the first public notice of the quake.

Abbott Re-elected To Solarium Post

Douglas R. Abbott was re-elected president of the board of directors of the Queen Alexandra Solarium for Crippled Children at the annual general meeting Thursday.

The financial report of the hospital showed an operating deficit of $87,000 for 1966, a normal figure for the year's work.

The directors received and approved recommendations for revision of the 20-year-old constitution and bylaws covering operation of the solarium.

The honorary medical staff, 50 solicitor.

leading doctors in every field of medicine in the province, all of whom donate their services, was re-elected by acclamation.

The board's 1967 officers are: Mr. Abbott, president; Lt.-Col. C. W. King, vice-president; and John S. Holdstock, secretary.

Lieutenant-Governor Penches was re-elected honorary president of the board.

Other honorary officers are: Premier Bennett, vice-president; Health Minister Black, vice-president; P. F. Watt, treasurer; and R. M. McKay, solicitor.

Slip, Don't Puff, on Peels For Best Banana Trip

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (LAT) — A University of California chemist here wants to get hippies straight on the psychedelic delights of smoking baked banana peels.

Dr. Junji Kumamoto says the whole concoction is about as wild as a dish of tapioca pudding. Any narcotic effect, he said, is probably imaginary.

Kumamoto, who works in the university's agricultural department, said the only substance in banana peels even slightly narcotic is amyl acetate, sometimes used in paint.

Negro Movement 'To Save U.S.'

BIMINI, The Bahamas (UPI) — Adam Clayton Powell and a group of U.S. Negro leaders announced Thursday plans to organize a "third force" political movement to convince the nation its future lies with the Negro race.

Speaking for the group at a dockside news conference, the former New York Congressman said it was too early to determine whether the all-Negro movement could develop into a third party. But he said it would "criss-cross the nation" to tell the people that the future of America depends on the black man.

'DEPENDS ON BLACKS'

Powell, ousted by the U.S. House of Representatives for alleged misuse of federal funds, said: "Adam Clayton Powell is not important. What is important is the future of America which depends on the future of the black people."

TOUR PLANNED

He said that the United States "without black people is one of the smallest minorities in the world... without Asia, Central America and South America, the United States is going down the drain. Our mission is to save the United States of America." Surrounded by about 100 tourists and islanders, Powell said the new movement's leaders would make a coast-to-coast tour after the April 11 special election in which he is running to regain his House seat.

Highlight of the tour, he said, would be a national conference of elected Negro officials in Los Angeles May 28-29. Powell emphasized that the movement was non-partisan and the conference would be open to Democrats and Republicans.

Powell, who faces arrest in connection with a slander judgment against him if he returns to New York, refused to give any hint when he planned to return to the United States. "That's my business," he said.

But one of the group said Powell would keynote the May conference in Los Angeles.

Guards Affiliate with B.C.

B.C.'s provincial emblem now is officially part of the colors of the 200 Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, a company of the Regiment of Canadian Grenadier Guards who received Gold Cord and the colors — approved by the Queen and donated by the B.C. government — are of midnight blue with a half sun as in the provincial coat-of-arms over the Roman numeral XI on a scroll. They were presented to the company Thursday by Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes signifying the company's affiliation with B.C.

Each of the regiment's companies has become affiliated with a province or city in Canada and ceremonies have already taken place in Winnipeg, Regina and Edmonton.

The presentation took place on the grounds of the Legislative Buildings, watched by a crowd of 400 spectators.

Commander of the 50-man guard of honor was Capt. A. H. Colham, Toronto, and the 38-man regimental band was directed by WO1 R. A. Ehlerts. Also taking part in the

There was a deficit of $5,104 on last year's operations. Of the $52,396 which was spent during 1966, $39,100 was for salaries and employee benefits.

Boy Violates Terms, Sent to Jail

A 16-year-old boy who violated terms of a suspended sentence imposed last fall for theft was sentenced Thursday to 18 months definite and six months indefinite in Haney young offenders unit by Magistrate J. A. Byers in central magistrate's court.

Last fall David L. Richards of Mill Bay was convicted of stealing an outboard motor boat from a Mill Bay marina and an outboard motor gasoline tank from the Oak Bay Marina, and also of breaking into the Undersea Gardens. He was given a two-year suspended sentence and placed on a $250 good behavior bond.

One term of the suspended sentence was that the boy attend a youth training school, Secret Harbor Farms, in Washington until discharged by authorities.

Last week a probation officer told court the youngster had run away from the institution twice over the past two months.

Magistrate Byers told the boy the pre-sentence report showed he was completely "unamenable" to any form of training or education attempted for his benefit.

He observed the only course left was a lengthy period at the young offenders' unit, where the boy might make use of the profitable training.

John Edwards, 25, of 2754 Fifty, pleaded guilty to taking four cartons of cigarettes from a Douglas Street supermarket on March 3 without paying for them and was fined $100.

Same Store Target

Court was told the accused admitted to police he took cigarettes from the same store on five different occasions without paying. Each time he took four cartons.

Magistrate Byers suggested he stop smoking.

A $300 fine and a recommendation of a four-month suspension of driver's licence were imposed on William Irvine, 64, of 2818 Murray Drive, after he pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving.

Court was told the accused was arrested about 10:55 p.m. March 22, after being spotted by police on Craigflower Road, where he was driving without his headlights turned on.

Magistrate Byers also recommended the accused be allowed to drive from Victoria to Sooke three times weekly to tend a small acreage he has under cultivation.

Richard S. Scott, 223 Storemont, was fined $25 after he pleaded guilty to conducting business in Saanich without a licence.

A 23-year-old Esquimalt man pleaded guilty to attempting to commit suicide in his home about 10:30 p.m. March 25, and was remanded in custody until April 7.

Constable Douglas Sproston told court he found Nicholas G. Lapkowski, 1035 Esquimalt Road, lying on the floor of his home bleeding from a stomach wound.

Robert Walton, 20, of 4060 Quadra, pleaded guilty to a charge of being a minor in possession of liquor and was fined $25.

Allen A. Johnston, 18, of HMCS Yukon, was fined $300 and $10, after pleading guilty to charges of impaired driving and being a minor without insurance.

Johnston was stopped by police after speeding in the 1200-block Government about 12:35 a.m. March 30. He gave a breathalyzer reading of .16 per cent.

Magistrate Byers recommended his driver's licence be suspended for four months and the car's licence plates be lifted until the accused gets car insurance.

Patricia Harcus, 2219 Blenheim, was given a six-month suspended sentence and placed on a $100 good behavior bond when she appeared in central

Descendant Of Solomon Here Soon

Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia will pay his state visit to British Columbia April 26 and 27, B.C. centennial committee chairman L. J. Wallace of Victoria said Thursday.

The 75-year-old Lion of Judah will be the first in a series of heads of state expected to visit the province this year in honor of the centennial celebrations.

The emperor, 11th descendant of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, will arrive in Vancouver from California April 26 in his personal aircraft.

During his stay he will be a guest in Government House in Victoria.

New Lights Next Week

Traffic lights will be in operation next week at the junction of Blenkinsop Road and Cedar Hill Cross Road.

It was announced Thursday that flashing lights will go into operation at the intersection this weekend to warn the public that signals will soon be installed.

The flashing red light will be on Blenkinsop and the amber on Cedar Hill Cross Road.

Cable Snaps Six Die

LENARES, Spain (Reuters)—Six miners plunged more than 3,000 feet to their death near here when the cable of a mine lift snapped shortly before it reached the surface.

'It Beats Ban-War Signs'

TORONTO (CP)—Eighty-four senior medical students and interns, seven each from Canada's 12 medical schools, will head to Canada's far northwest this summer to celebrate Centennial year by giving medical care to Eskimos.

Project director Andre LaFonde of the University of Ottawa said in an interview the project of the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Interns "makes more sense to us than carrying signs saying ban the war."

The students, including 10 girls, will gather in Edmonton Aug. 12 for three days of orientation lectures followed by a week of studying northern health problems at the Inuvik hospital.

Then, in groups of five to seven, they will fan out to isolated villages which have no doctors, such as Tuktoyaktuk, Old Crow and Coppermine.

They will give routine medical examinations to the native population, assess living conditions and educational facilities and look for ways to improve medical care in the area.

Marine Park Inspection Coming Soon

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—Federal and provincial officials will come for an on-the-spot investigation of the proposed West Coast Marine Park May 6.

"They will look over the general area," said MLA Howard McDiarmid, "but I think Long Beach has the most to offer."

He said he hopes the marine park will become a reality during centennial year. "I think the federal and provincial government representatives will like what they see."

Long Beach Ideal

Dr. McDiarmid said: "The federal thinking seemed to be that there must be a great deal of land."

"To me, a marine park should involve a great deal of the ocean."

"The Long Beach area offers open water, sheltered inlets, and ready access to Kennedy Lake, the largest body of fresh water on Vancouver Island."

The project had its start with the Tofino Chamber of Commerce and its parks committee, of which he has been chairman, the MLA said.

Shelter and Fishing

"The federal government already owns the area directly opposite on the ocean side, and what we would like to see is a series of small satellite parks in the inlet."

"Tourists would be able to come by car, put their boats in the water, load up their gear, and spend three or four days, cruising from one area to another," Dr. McDiarmid said.

The whole area has much to offer, sheltered inlets, plenty of shellfish and excellent fishing, the enthusiastic doctor said.

"I intend to be there and see that the government officials see all that there is to see," Dr. McDiarmid said.

"If they turn it down after that, that's up to them."

"But with beautiful Rathrevor Beach becoming a provincial park on one side, and the west coast marine park on the other, the Alberni Valley should become the centre of the most beautiful tourist area in British Columbia."

● The MLA also confirmed that work is in progress again on the Tofino Highway, with additional equipment due to move in shortly, and the project in full swing probably by the end of next week.

Widening of the tricky highway from Sutton Pass to the bottom of the switchbacks will be completed by next fall. Meanwhile, surveys are working between the switchbacks and Port Alberni, seeking a route that will eliminate the switchback area.

The doctor, whose home is in Tofino, and who is well acquainted with the problems of travel to and from the area, expressed the view of most travellers as he added "the switchbacks are beautiful, but they're hell in the winter."

● Dr. McDiarmid has also solved the problem of keeping in touch with his constituents in the Alberni Valley, the largest population centre in his riding, while attending to his busy medical practice up-coast.

Dave Russell, a long-time member of the Social Credit party in the area, has agreed to act as his personal representative.

Where possible, Mr. Russell will suggest the action to be taken, but questions requiring Dr. McDiarmid's action will be referred to him.

In addition, the MLA intends to be in the valley at least one Saturday each month, and appointments will be made through Mr. Russell for those who wish to speak with him at that time.

"In many cases, problems require someone to go out and have a personal look at things," Dr. McDiarmid explained.

Walkout Settled At Gold River

GOLD RIVER — More than 1,000 construction workers who staged a one-day walkout Thursday at the Gold River pulp mill project will return to their jobs this morning.

The walkout followed the strike of electricians at the camp Wednesday when Canadian Cement Co. Ltd. ordered Plumbers and Pipefitters' Union members to install several electrical instrument panels.

Electricians then formed a picket line at the Talsis Company job, claiming the plumbers were doing work which should have been done by the electricians. Workers in other trades refused to cross the line and work was halted.

Union officials said Canadian Cement was forced to award the work to one union in the absence of an agreement between the plumbers and electricians regarding the panel installation.

The officials flew to Vancouver to straighten out difficulties, and an agreement assigning suitable sections of the installation work to each group was worked out.

MacKenzie

'Woods and Mills Need One Union'

Regional Council of the IWA held an emergency session over the Gold River issue, and voted to go full-speed ahead with the fight for the right to bargain for pulp mill employees.

Jack MacKenzie, regional vice-president, said, "The regional executive board held the view that, in this closely integrated and isolated industrial complex, the interests of all workers concerned could be adequately served only by one union."

"The IWA is now representing 800 employees of the Talsis River Company and has already established the necessary facilities for supplying such service in this area."

ALL WORKERS

The move was taken by the regional board in support of Port Alberni Local 1485 application for variance of the present certification to include all employees of the Talsis River area.

"If the application is granted by the Labor Relations Board at a hearing scheduled for an early date," Mr. MacKenzie said, "the existing IWA certification for the Talsis company employees will be broadened to include the employees of the new pulp mill at Gold River."

BARMAC BLAST

Gordon Wickham, president of Barmac Pulp and Papers of Canada at Nanaimo, said, "The IWA is overlooking two facts: "Gold River is not an integral part of the industry (of that area). The pulp mill is separate from the logging operation and the Talsis sawmill."

"It's the old balance of power advocating that the workers belong to a union they don't want."

Mr. Wickham referred to the idea of uniting bargaining power of unions under one head, expressed previously.

"A free vote is necessary."

"One union cannot force itself onto other unions. If one central bargaining power has merit, it must be brought about by consultation of everybody."

Mr. MacKenzie said, "This decision of the board followed a review of all the circumstances."

and the competing claims of the two pulp-sulphite unions."

Mr. MacKenzie stated the significance of the board's decision "is that IWA regional council again emphasized its conviction that present-day trends in the forests products industry demand one union for all those engaged in harvesting and processing wood, from the stump to the finished product."

MONIE CHADS

"Fragmentation perpetuates chaos and invites ultimate disaster at the bargaining table. The IWA deplored interunion conflict, but regards the Gold River situation as the place to exemplify the necessary coalition of bargaining by all groups of workers in the industry."

Duncan Reserve Report

Storage Needed

DUNCAN — Lack of indoor water, and lack of storage space for clothing, dishes and linen, are blamed for poor housekeeping in some homes on the Cowichan Indian Reserve.

Band secretary Louise Underwood said if these basic requirements were met, the housewives would probably maintain cleaner and neater homes.

"With the coming of the housing program, most of these conditions will be improved."

She made the comments following an environmental survey made on the Cowichan reserve by health inspector Myrus James.

She said "At the request of the chief and the councillors, this survey was carried out last December."

Each house was visited, but in some cases children could not be included in a count, because they were away at residential schools.

The result of the report showed in comparison between 1960 and today: Below-standard houses decreased from 58 to 19; above-standard homes increased from 48 to 89, and 87 were found to be medium.

Garden Notes

'Sport' Worth $1,000

By M. V. CHESNUT

When friends come to visit our garden at the height of the gladiolus season, the flower which always evokes the greatest admiration is Landmark. As I have mentioned before, Landmark is an All-American Gladiolus Award winner of 1960, bred by a Canadian amateur, and makes a sturdy spike closely filled with high cream-colored florets. The petals are beautifully ruffled, and the enormous spike will open as many as 14 of its 22 buds at one time.

I think the thing that appeals most strongly to me, though, is Landmark's unrelentingly constitution. This lovely pure cream gladiolus never seems to come down with bugs or blight, and it grows like a weed even under the most appalling weather conditions.

If you should take a crack at growing Landmark this year - the bulbs are expensive, 35 cents each - you'd better keep your fingers crossed and hope that one of your plants will take it into its head to "sport" and throw up a spike of pure white flowers instead of cream. This could put a cheque for $1,000 in your pocket.

You see, the commercial out-flower gladiolus growers in Florida are in urgent need of a really good pure white gladiolus for the floral trade. White gladioli are in huge demand for weddings, funerals and church altar decoration, and florists probably sell as many whites as all the other colors put together. The Florida growers have lots of white varieties, but in that climate they are plagued with all kinds of weird blights, bugs, fungus infections and virus diseases.

Landmark seems to stand up against all these gladiolus afflictions, shrugging off infection while nearby plants of other varieties curl up and turn yellow in the leaf. Unfortunately, the rich cream color of Landmark isn't quite what is wanted for a bride's bouquet or for altar decoration, and what the Florida boys are looking for is a true Landmark gladiolus which has turned white.

To further the search, they are offering an award of $1,000 for the first white sport of Landmark to be accepted. It is not an uncommon thing for a gladiolus variety to change color by the little-understood mechanism known as "sporting." The earliest gladiolus in our garden, a fine clean pink one called Friendship, has given birth to a white sport now called White Friendship. It isn't pure white, for there is a touch of cream in the throat, but both Friendship and its white sport make grand gladioli for the garden and for cutting, and are reasonably priced at 90 cents to $1.30 per dozen, depending on the size and quality of the bulbs.

One gladiolus which never ceases to amaze me is an old-timer called Snow Princess. This is a lovely flower with unusual vigor, milky white with a faint tinge of green in the throat, and opening about seven florets at one time.

While Snow Princess is a reliable garden gladiolus in every respect, there are better white-flowered varieties. Morning Kiss, for instance, makes a taller spike, bigger flowers, and has petals of a better texture. The thing that fascinates me about Snow Princess, though, is her fantastic rate of reproduction. She breeds like a rabbit - plant one bulb and you dig up three, plus a whole cupful of bulblets or "spawns," most of which can be grown on to blooming size within two years.

One old-timer which is still winning prizes at the flower shows is Spic and Span. This one makes a good tall spike filled with big, clean florets in a clear pink shade, and will open up to 10 flowers at one time. Because of the heavy, waxy texture of the petals, Spic and Span seems to last somewhat longer in water than its males.

ERMA BOMBECK Wastes Her Pity

Everything Must Go!

When people are down on their luck it only makes sense to try to help. That's why when I saw the sign in Mr. Bennett's furniture store window, "BANKRUPTCY EVERYTHING MUST GO," I went in to console him.

"Mr. Bennett," I said, "I'm going to make an odd request. I'm going to ask you to sell me something that is not on sale. No wonder you can't stay in business. You're cutting yourself too close to the margin of profit. Go ahead, charge me full price for something."

Mr. Bennett scratched his head a bit. "I don't allow as I can do that," he said. "I mean, the way things are set up in the furniture business, it just wouldn't set well with the other dealers."

"You see, this is the end of March and according to my calendar that's 'BANKRUPTCY' EVERYTHING MUST GO' month. This just gives me time to get my April 'MANUFACTURERS' CLOSE-OUT'... ALL SALES ARE FINAL' stickers made."

"Then in no time at all, May comes along and that's my 'END OF THE MONTH CLEARANCE'... NO LAY-BYS, RETURNS OR ADJUSTMENTS AFTER MERCHANDISE LEAVES THE STORE.' And, of course, June is always my 'CARLOAD BONANZA'... NO DEALERS, PLEASE! followed, of course, by my 'HELP! I'M OVERSTOCKED! WE GOOFED' event in July.

"Let's see, in August, I break out my 'FIRE, SMOKE AND WATER DAMAGED MERCHANDISE'..."

"Wait a minute," I interrupted. "How do you know, in March you're going to have fire, smoke and water damaged merchandise in August?"

"Have I ever lied?" he asked. "September is my 'LIQUIDATION'... MUST SACRIFICE promotion. I like that one. It always sounds so final. Which takes us to October. That's the month I always paste the windows solid with paper so no one can see in and I crayon across the front, 'I'VE LOST MY LEASE.' Very effective. It's a real crowd teaser."

"Then you are trying to tell me I can't pay full price for anything in this store at any time?"

"I didn't say that," he said, stroking his chin. "Let's see, I've got a space between Nov. 19-24 that I could stage a 'NO SALE WEEK'... EVERYTHING ON THE FLOOR WILL BE REGULARLY PRICED FOR FIVE DAYS ONLY.' It's so crazy, it might just work!" he said.

Ustinov Gets Girl

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) - "At last I am a lover," writes Peter Ustinov. "At last I get the girl, and what a girl." Elizabeth Taylor, to be factual, in the Comedians. She plays his wife, has a fling with Richard Burton, then back to Peter, who is now recuperating in his Swiss chalet with his real wife, Suzanne, and their children.

Another man who rates a rest, Serge Bourgeois, who has finished editing his picture with Brigitte Bardot, now titled The Game of Love and who is off to Tanganyika to get away from it all for a few weeks. It is probable that The Game of Love will open the Cannes film festival. If so, Brigitte will make her first appearance there since 1954 when she was a brunette starlet, before she became a blonde star in And God Created Woman.

James Fox, the fair-haired British actor so much in demand for Hollywood pictures, has been meeting with John Houston in Ireland about starring in The Sinful Adventures of Davey Haggard... asked to confirm the rumor that Frank and Mia would guest on his first TV show, Joey Bishop denied it with, "The truth is, I don't have the guts to ask Sinatra to work for $500 - the standard payment for all performers on Joey's night-time show to debut April 17 on ABC-TV."

Choo Choo Collins has returned from Honolulu, where she had a great success with Chris Holmes, ex-husband of Arlene Dahl, and also a success with the series of concerts she gave with Joey Bushkin.

Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward are taking their first trip to Europe without working - one week in London, one in Rome, and two in the Greek islands aboard a yacht with Gore Vidal... They will bump into Sean Connery, who will be aboard the yacht, to be chartered by Terence Young.

Elke Sommer keeps insisting that she will never appear completely nude in a film which, as you know, is the fashion today, but she manages to keep losing her clothes in The Wicked Dream of Paul Schultz. In between whites, Elke bought an apartment building in a Spanish resort and she and husband Joe Hyams will vacation there in the summer.

Lana Turner's Tangled Web picture, which she was in film in Rome, is all tangled in a web of complications, and at this moment she is not betting that it will ever be made. Wasn't this one for her husband, Bob Eaton, with whom she recently reconciled? Anyway, to fill in the time, Lana will make a rare appearance on television, for the Smothers Brothers next month.

Ready to Go Where's Chester? —Hanoi

LONDON (CP) — Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, indicated Thursday that North Vietnam has inquired about the whereabouts of Chester Ronning, Canadian diplomat who has carried Canadian messages to Hanoi in the past.

Martin said in an interview that Ronning, a Southeast Asia expert who now is retired, is ready to go to Hanoi immediately if there is any indication North Vietnam wants to talk about peace.

Martin said there has been no official reply from Hanoi to proposals for stopping the Vietnam war made by U Thant, United Nations secretary-general.

REPLY RECEIVED

He said North Vietnam probably would neither accept nor reject Thant's suggestions — at least for the present — but there had been an inquiry as to the whereabouts of Ronning.

A UN spokesman Wednesday night said Thant did receive a reply from Hanoi but declined to say what was in it. Diplomatic sources said Thursday that North Vietnam rejected Thant's proposals.

Ronning went to Hanoi with a Canadian proposal last year. Martin is here for discussions with Commonwealth leaders.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant "will continue his efforts" for peace in Vietnam, a UN spokesman said Wednesday.

The informant gave that reply at a briefing for correspondents.

Grenadier Robber A Woman

SEATTLE (UPI) — A frail young woman armed with a hand grenade robbed the Green Lake branch of the Seattle Trust and Savings Bank Thursday.

She escaped in a late model sedan with an undetermined amount of money.

Employees said the woman, about 24, showed a teller a hand grenade and said she also had a pistol in a shoulder holster.

Crisis Over Plot Topples Cabinet

Paraskevopoulos

ATHENS (UPI) — Premier John Paraskevopoulos submitted the resignation of his caretaker government to King Constantine Thursday in a political crisis stemming from an abortive plot to overthrow the monarchy.

The king was expected to ask the leader of the conservative National Radical Union party (ERE), Panayiotis Canellopoulos, to form a new government.

The government was brought to the brink of collapse when the ERE said it would withdraw its support from Paraskevopoulos if the government approved an electoral law amendment that would grant immunity to former premier George Papandreu and his son Andreas for any links with the Aspidas (Shield) organization that allegedly plotted to overthrow the king.

London Betting On Michener

OTTAWA (CP) — It seems certain now that Prime Minister Pearson will announce the name of Canada's new governor-general next Tuesday in the Commons.

At a news conference Tuesday, he indicated an announcement next week on a successor to Gen. George Vanier, who died March 5 after 7½ years in the vice-regal post.

Roland Michener, now Canadian high commissioner to India, emerged in diplomatic speculation in London Thursday night as most likely to become Canada's next governor-general.

One experienced diplomatic informant said "nothing can be 100-per-cent sure in this world" but it would be a good bet that the former speaker of the House of Commons will be named.

Westwood presented the order to the Queen during a visit to Clarence House, her London residence.

DOGWOOD

The flower of the dogwood tree is one of the best known native flowers in B.C. The order was instituted recently to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the union of the one-time colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia.

Escalation or Warning?

U.S. TEARS UP RED AIRFIELD

By TED SELL

WASHINGTON (LAT)—American planes have attacked Communist North Vietnam's newest jet fighter airfield in the first raid of its kind in the war.

According to information available here, the attack nine days ago by a Navy A-6 Intruder struck a new field at Bai Thuong, 80 miles southwest of Hanoi.

Intelligence officers estimated that in another week, the field would have been ready to receive a complement of Soviet-built MIG jet fighters.

So far, Communist airfields sheltering MIGs have been immune from U.S. attack under rules which most air force commanders consider overly restrictive. The Pentagon never has said why such fields have been off-limits.

CRATER FIELD

No MIGs were at the field when it was attacked. The raid was intended to crater the airfield before it was put to use.

U.S. planes have attacked small air strips throughout North Vietnam since air raids on the north started in 1965. In most cases, the raids hit at dirt strips and fields which MIGs were not expected to use.

Bai Thuong was a brand new field, and apparently was intended from the first as MIG base.

INTERESTING

Pentagon officials declined to call the raid escalation of the U.S. air war. But officers described the move as "interesting" and indicated it should serve as a warning to Hanoi on basing MIGs at new fields.

Existing MIG fields cluster around the Hanoi and Haiphong areas. Use of Bai Thuong would have placed MIG interceptors at short range to U.S. planes in flight to North Vietnamese targets either from bases in Thailand or in northern South Vietnam.

'Take Beefs To U.S.'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday that persons protesting the death and injury of children in Vietnam should take their complaints to the United States government.

The prime minister made the comment when greeted at Vancouver International Airport by half-dozen placards protesting the Vietnam war.

One sign read: "Pearson accomplice in genocide." The prime minister said these people "should ask them in Washington about that," referring to the accomplice.

Mr. Pearson and his wife arrived in a government jet star from Calgary for a three-day Vancouver visit before going to Santa Barbara, Calif., where Mr. Pearson will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of California.

California Governor Ronald Reagan was invited to the luncheon which will precede Mr. Pearson's convocation address. No official meeting between the prime minister and Governor Reagan has been arranged.

Banner Day In Dark

Canadian Guardsmen came all the way from Petawawa, Ont., to witness ceremony Thursday in Victoria, and this is what happened. Lieutenant-Governor Pearson was presenting color to No. 11 Company of Regiment of Canadian Guards, signifying its affiliation with British Columbia. See story, picture, Page 27.—(Jim Ryan)

Businessmen Nabbed

Chinese in Jakarta Accused in Red Plot

JAKARTA (UPI) — Indonesian military authorities were reported Friday to have arrested several prominent Chinese businessmen on charges of financing the Communist underground and plotting to incite opposition to the government.

The army newspaper Armed Forces Daily quoted a spokesman for the Jakarta military garrison as saying that the unrest in East Java was apparently organized and financed from Jakarta, "possibly with aid from outside."

The newspaper said the spokesman was "unwilling to answer the question whether the Chinese Embassy in Jakarta was behind the trouble."

The Communist party in Indonesia was outlawed following the unsuccessful coup of 1965 which was reported to have had the backing of China.

There are about 1,000,000 Chinese in Indonesia.

TV Strike Spreading

From LAT

A strike against major television and radio networks spread Thursday as more unions stayed off the job or prepared to do so in observance of picket lines.

They included cameramen and engineers whose absence could further restrict live programming.

At the same time, two well-known TV newsmen faced expulsion from their union for defiance of picket lines.

Cameramen, Engineers Stay Away

ket lines of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

CBS newscaster Maury Green voiced the general resentment against Huntley. "Either Huntley is through as a newscaster or AFTRA is finished as far as newsmen go."

The union can expel Hunt-

ley for refusing to respect its picket lines. But expulsion from the union is not grounds for dismissing him from NBC.

Meanwhile, Herb Aller, head of the AFL-CIO Cameramen's Union in Los Angeles, said he will fly to New York for a meeting Sunday with Richard Walsh, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees, to "get full support for our brother cameramen in this strike."

Aller said the cameramen's union, an IATSE affiliate, had a membership meeting Wednesday night, "and everyone

OUTLOOK FOR steelhead on Vancouver Island rivers this weekend is excellent, but don't forget YOUR FISHING LICENSE EXPIRES TODAY.

Many anglers give up steelheading at this time of year. They will have had their fill of fish and just now rivers are full of kelts (steelhead which have turned color and spawned) or darkening fish. These fish are not too palatable in that position, although they still provide plenty of sport on light tackle.

Fresh run fish are still entering the rivers and may be taken quite readily. The only trouble is you have to catch so many fish to get a bright one and this goes against the grain for some anglers. You, of course, should release the kelts and dark fish for aesthetic reasons alone, although conservationwise any fish is a swanner no matter what condition it is in or where it is caught.

If you are among those anglers who have had difficulty catching steelhead, this includes most of us now is the time the rivers contain most of the big sea-run rainbows and the nine-to-ten year angler should meet with the most success... the time to learn steelheading.

In the Little Qualicum and Big Qualicum Rivers this week Ole Kronkanger and Gordon Taylor, of Burnaby, hooked into 15 fish in two days. There was only one keeper among the ones they beached.

Vancouver Island rivers were in good shape Thursday and as well as plenty of steelhead, most of them held cutthroats in the estuaries.

At this time of year the steelhead will take worms and so will the cutthroats, so there is a double chance of getting fish. A time-bodied fly is the usual lure for the cutthroats as they come in for the emerging salmon fry.

The Koksilah has been better than the Cowichan for steelheading, but the Cowichan is providing some fair trout fishing in the lower reaches and around Skutz Falls. San Juan, Harris Creek and Nitinat have all been good. So have the Puntledge, Quinsam and Oyster Rivers. John Elbert reports the Salmon is still giving up beautiful big and bright steelhead and August Penik proved it by taking a 21 pounder last Sunday.

Campbell River Sportsman Centre steelhead derby ends this weekend, with Bill Clark in the lead with three steelhead weighing 61.15 pounds.

Garry Christensen, Len Francis and Mel Jasbee returned from a north Island trip this week with tales of wonderful steelheading on the Kooch, Quatso, Clowse and Marble Rivers. They fished mostly the lower reaches, not far from the road bridges and had little difficulty in catching plenty of bright steelhead, but no big ones. Mostly they were 7, 8 and 9-pounders, with one 12-pounder.

Cold weather has held back the trout fishing in lakes, but some have been producing. Cowichan Lake has been good on trout. A Cowichan 4 spinner or roe and bobber from the shore has been getting them in Quamichan.

Someone hasn't been too good. Wolfe and Council, adjacent to the water board area at Leechtown, have been giving up bright fish. Miller Creek in Lower Campbell, Gosseneck and Middle Quinsam have been fair in the Campbell River area.

OAK BAY is producing some pretty fair jackspring fishing for fish up to seven pounds; Pedder Bay has been good for bluebacks; in Saanich Inlet, a few springs are still being taken in Tod Inlet to Willis Point area and Willis Point-Rick's Root-The Boulder Run has been best for blues on flashlights.

In Finlayson Arm there are plenty of bluebacks and chinooks but you have to get there for the bite. Bare Point at Chemainus, Tent Island and Thetis Island are still good for blues. Blues and chinooks are being taken off the Comox Bay and snappers are getting chinooks up to 18 pounds from the Campbell River government wharf.

BIG OUTDOOR event this weekend will be the Vancouver Island Retriever Club field trials Saturday and Sunday at Blenkinsop Lake from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days.

Saturday will see junior and qualifying dogs in action and all day Sunday open events will be held. There will be 18 junior dogs, 20 qualifying dogs and 18 open dogs competing, including last year's Canadian National champion and American Amateur champion black Labrador Captain of Lomax, owned and handled by Rudy Deering of Vancouver.

Andrew Pruitt of Tacoma and Pete McLellan of Ladner will be judges. The public is invited to turn out and watch the trials. It is a fine show to watch these highly-trained dogs work on ducks and pheasants over land and water courses.

IF ANYONE who read our Wednesday column about proposals for a Juan de Fuca sports fishing reserve figured the statistics showed netters taking 100-pound coho, they had a right to be surprised. Cresting over into the copy, it should have read 112 pounds, or only about 12 coho, were caught by net fishermen in Area 19 (tip of Saanich Peninsula to William Head) in 1966. Copy said 112 hundredweight. Comparison catch was 12 coho caught by netters in Area 19 to more than 600 coho caught by netters in Area 20 (William Head to about six miles above Port Renfrew.)

Floyd Scores KO Wants Clay Next

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Floyd I've been waiting a long time Patterson, former heavyweight champion, turned up for a prize fight with heavyweight long Cassius Clay by knocking out Bill McMurray Thursday night in 2:37 of the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

Patterson didn't even give his opponent time to get started before lowering the boom.

Patterson stung McMurray with a long left that dropped the Sacramento, Calif., fighter to his knees, then finished him off moments later with a lightning combination.

Patterson weighed 197, McMurray 208½.

"I'm ready to meet Clay," Patterson said, after the bout. "Any date is agreeable to me."

Marine Park Inspection Coming Soon

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—Federal and provincial officials will come for an on-the-spot inspection of the proposed West Coast Marine Park May 6.

"They will look over the general area," said MLA Howard McDiarmid, "but I think Long Beach has the most to offer."

He said he hopes the marine park will become a reality during centennial year. "I think the federal and provincial government representatives will like what they see."

Long Beach Ideal

Dr. McDiarmid said: "The federal thinking seemed to be that there must be a great deal of land."

"To me, a marine park should involve a great deal of the ocean."

"The Long Beach area offers open water, sheltered inlets, and ready access to Kennedy Lake, the largest body of fresh water on Vancouver Island."

The project had its start with the Tofino Chamber of Commerce and its parks committee, of which he has been chairman, the MLA said.

"It is in this capacity, as well as member of the legislature that I am keenly interested in the project."

Years ago, when a fish hatchery was in operation on Kennedy Lake, it was customary to ship supplies in by barge from McLean's Point on Tofino Inlet to the lake area, Dr. McDiarmid said.

Only a few small rapids impeded progress into Kennedy Lake from the Tofino Inlet, and this could easily be cleared to make it possible for pleasure craft to make the trip from salt water to the lake, he suggested.

Shelter and Fishing

"The federal government already owns the area directly opposite on the ocean side, and what we would like to see is a series of small satellite parks in the inlet."

"Tourists would be able to come by car, put their boats in the water, load up their gear, and spend three or four days, cruising from one area to another," Dr. McDiarmid said.

The whole area has much to offer, sheltered inlets, plenty of shellfish and excellent fishing, the enthusiastic doctor said.

"I intend to be there and see that the government officials see all that there is to see," Dr. McDiarmid said.

"If they turn it down after that, that's up to them."

"But with beautiful Rathrevor Beach becoming a provincial park on one side, and the west coast marine park on the other, the Alberni Valley should become the centre of the most beautiful tourist area in British Columbia."

● The MLA also confirmed that work is in progress again on the Tofino Highway, with additional equipment due to move in shortly, and the project in full swing probably by the end of next week.

Widening of the tricky highway from Sutton Pass to the bottom of the switchbacks will be completed by next fall. Meanwhile, surveys are working between the switchbacks and Port Alberni, seeking a route that will eliminate the switch-back area.

The doctor, whose home is in Tofino, and who is well acquainted with the problems of travel to and from the area, expressed the view of most travellers as he added "the switchbacks are beautiful, but they're hell in the winter."

● Dr. McDiarmid has also solved the problem of keeping in touch with his constituents in the Alberni Valley, the largest population centre in his riding.

Undramatic Haidas Not for Theatre

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — The Indians of the west coast are so stoic to be dramatic, said adjudicator Franklyn Johnson.

"They are too self-controlled," he said.

Mr. Johnson was commenting on a play about the Haida Indians, in the Island one-act drama festival.

The tragedy of Tanoo by A. M. Fairburn was presented by Lady Smith Little Theatre, and directed by Alma Mawson.

"It is not a particularly good play," said the adjudicator. He praised detail in sets and costumes.

Mr. Johnson said Alice Atkinson over-emphasized speech mannerisms. He said the director could have invented more business.

The adjudicator said Penelope, The Pride of the Pickle Factory, "is straight entertainment."

The play was written by Tracy Huff and directed by Margaret Davidson for Harwood Players.

Mr. Johnson said he liked the performance of Elizabeth Wilson as Penelope, and Gordon Halkett had "a good sense of comedy."

Overtones by Alice Gerstenson was directed by 14-year-old Mark Brass for St. Peter's Players.

"This is a tough play to do, and they did it very well," he said. Mr. Johnson praised the reactions of the actors.

He said, however, the play kept too much on one level. Mr. Johnson said this was a problem of most plays so far in the festival.

He told all actors who have appeared in the festival, "Make us believe in the character. We have been too aware of the people on the stage are actors."

Tonight is the festival: Courtney presents the first play, Moment of Darkness. Then comes Victoria's St. Matthias Little Theatre with N. F. Simpson's The Form.

Last play of the festival will be Duncan's It's Only My Nerves.

Adjudicator Franklyn Johnson will give his comments, then choose the three best plays of the festival, and they will play Saturday, awards night.

Labor Officials Plan Seminar

Well-known labor officials George Horne, Jack Mackenzie and Dan Radford will be in Victoria April 22 and 23 for a seminar at the Union Centre on Quadra Street on political implications and administrative procedures of organized labor.

Delegates will come from the 27 Victoria Labor Council locals on a voluntary basis. Sponsors will be the Canadian Labor Congress and B.C. Federation of Labor, with the Victoria council's assistance.

She was a costume designer working with directors in France, Austria and Russia.

Mrs. deLoew said "When you are working on stage you need make-up rooms. But most important, is the acoustics."

"There are a lot of things connected with the theatre that the audience knows nothing about."

Among those acting in the Duncan club's farce tonight are Derek Rhind as Mr. Funnelsnout, the patient; Bill Bennett as the doctor.

'Woods and Mills Need One Union'

Regional Council of the IWA held an emergency session over the Gold River issue, and voted to go full-speed ahead with the fight for the right to bargain for pulp mill employees.

Jack Mackenzie, regional first vice-president, said, "The regional executive board held the view that, in this closely integrated and isolated industrial complex, the interests of all workers concerned could be adequately served only by one union."

"The IWA is now representing 800 employees of the Tahsis River Company, and has already established the necessary facilities for supplying such service in this area."

ALL WORKERS

The move was taken by the regional board in support of Port Alberni Local 1-85's application for variance of the present certification to include all employees of the Tahsis company in the Tahsis-Gold River area.

"If the application is granted by the Labor Relations Board at a hearing scheduled for an early date," Mr. Mackenzie said, "the existing IWA certification for the Tahsis company employees will be broadened to include the employees of the new pulp mill at Gold River."

HARMAC BLAST

Gordon Wickham, president of Harmac Pulp and Papers of Canada at Nanaimo, said, "The IWA is overlooking two facts: Gold River is not an integral part of the industry (of that area). The pulp mill is separate from the logging operation and the Tahsis sawmill."

VOTE PLEASE

"The men at Gold River should at least get an opportunity to vote on it."

"It's the old baloney of people advocating that the workers belong to a union they don't want."

Mr. Wickham referred to the idea of uniting bargaining power of unions under one head, expressed previously.

"One union cannot force itself onto other unions. If one central bargaining power has merit, it must be brought about by consultation of everybody.

"A free vote is necessary."

PULP UNIONS

Mr. Mackenzie said, "This decision of the board followed a review of all the circumstances, and the competing claims of the two pulp-sulphite unions."

Mr. Mackenzie stated the significance of the board's decision "is that IWA regional council again emphasized its conviction that present-day trends in the forest products industry demand one union for all those engaged in harvesting and processing wood, from the stump to the finished product."

MORE CHAOS

"Fragmentation perpetuates chaos and invites ultimate disaster at the bargaining table. The IWA deplored interunion conflict, but regards the Gold River situation as the place to exemplify the necessary coalition of bargaining by all groups of workers in the industry."

Walkout Settled At Gold River

GOLD RIVER — More than 1,000 construction workers who staged a one-day walkout Thursday at the Gold River pulp mill project will return to their jobs this morning.

The walkout followed the strike of electricians at the camp Wednesday when Canadian Corstock Ltd. ordered Plumbers and Pipefitters' Union members to install several electrical instrument panels.

Electricians then formed a picket line at the Tahsis Company job, claiming the plumbers were doing work which should have been done by the electricians. Workers in other trades refused to cross the line and work was halted.

Union officials said Canadian Corstock was forced to award the work to one union in the absence of an agreement between the plumbers and electricians regarding the panel installation.

The officials flew to Vancouver to straighten out difficulties, and an agreement assigning suitable sections of the installation work to each group was worked out.

Duncan Reserve Report

Storage Needed

DUNCAN — Lack of indoor water, and lack of storage space for clothing, dishes and linen, are blamed for poor housekeeping in some homes on the Cowichan Indian Reserve.

Band secretary Louise Underwood said if these basic requirements were met, the housewives would probably maintain cleaner and neater homes.

"With the coming of the housing program, most of these conditions will be improved."

She made the comments following an environmental survey made on the Cowichan reserve by health inspector Myrus James.

She said "At the request of the chief and the councillors, this survey was carried out last December."

Each house was visited, but in some cases children could not be included in a count, because they were away at residential schools.

The result of the report showed in comparison between 1960 and today: Below-standard houses decreased from 58 to 18; above-standard homes increased from 49 to 69, and 87 were found to be mediocre.

The total number of occupied dwellings decreased from 177 in 1960, to 170 homes now.

Miss Underwood said "This is a reduction of seven houses probably caused by the abandonment caused by fires and dilapidation."

"The housekeeping in the good and fair categories exceeded those of the poor."

"Twenty-five are poor with about 12 houses that are extremely unsatisfactorily maintained."

"A total of 72 houses are good and 72 are fair."

"As compared to 1960 records, housekeeping methods have improved."

Other items of the report dealt with sanitary facilities and fire hazards in homes. Cowichan Indian agent Ron Sampson said earlier he and his agency staff are prepared to assist the Indians to overcome their problems.

Nurses Take Care

COURTENAY — Maternal and child care services offered by the Upper Island Health Unit occupy a great deal of the time of nurses on staff at the unit.

In addition to individual counselling done at well baby clinics and the group sessions on infant care, a series of film showings was conducted during the year. These were shown to interested mothers of pre-school children and followed by discussion periods.

The topics covered normal growth and developmental patterns of the young child as well as a few of the common problems encountered in every day living.

The program was worthwhile according to the annual report of the health unit director, Dr. G. A. Gibson. If staffing conditions permit a similar program will be carried out this year.

PARENTS COME

School health services are also included in the work of the health unit. This year the report notes the takeover in Courtenay and Campbell River districts of the education of the retarded.

Sex education was continued in local schools by use of films showing physical and emotional changes which occur at puberty. In some areas parents were invited to attend, either as a separate adult group, or with their children.

The report states "much more requires to be done here to improve attitudes in the pupils and to enable them to face their problems in an emotionally healthy manner."

Duncan Needs Job for 1967

DUNCAN — The city's recreation commission hopes city council will consider a centennial project finally.

Patrick Rogers, one of the commission members, said "the prospect is good we will have a utility type field house built at the Wharfedale Road Park by this fall."

His statements came after the commission had met with city council members in camera Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Rogers said the building would cost between $15,000 and $20,000 and the local commission will try to get plans of a similar type of utility building from Oak Bay for study.

SPEND GRANT
Mr. Rogers said "City council told us it fully intends to spend the centennial grant on recreation and the playing field at Wharfedale Park is already being improved."

He said the proposed utility building would have washrooms and shower facilities.

A plan for a more elaborate field house at the same location was scrapped several months ago when the cost jumped from the estimated $30,000 to $60,000.

Unless Reasons Academic-Grad Students

Dismissals Opposed

The University of Victoria's graduate students issued a statement Wednesday opposing the dismissal of faculty members for any other reasons than academic ones.

The 40-member Graduate Student Society voiced "growing dismay" over the current controversy around the dismissal of faculty members Dr. Charles Tarlton, J. S. Schwartz and Alan Mackenzie.

But the group said it does not intend to participate in any boycott of classes by undergraduates.

The society's letter said, in part: "While we recognize the right of the administration concerning the renewal of contracts without consulting the student body, we believe that the only legitimate reasons for not re-hiring faculty members should be academic ones. Super-Tankers Ply Strait

Oil Threat Always

Tankers much larger than the one which unleashed tides of oil on the English coast regularly pass within sight of Vancouver Island.

And if one of them cracked up on a reef, it could have the same disastrous effects on this island's beaches and marine life. "It's a threat, all right," Larry Slaght, district marine agent in Victoria, said Wednesday afternoon.

"Even a tanker smaller than the one which hit a reef off Southern England could produce a disastrous situation if it hit a reef."

The 18,562-ton tanker Torrey Canyon split amidships Monday, sending toward the picturesque coast of Cornwall and other resort areas a huge quantity of oil.

Mr. Slaght said that while no tankers come into Victoria, many of about 50,000 tons had and unloosed at Vancouver and Seattle.

"We could get that oil on our beaches if one of those ships went off course and hit a reef," he added.

The English are trying to fight the oil invasion with hundreds of thousands of gallons of detergents, but fears have arisen that those chemicals will kill marine life.

What could be done if such a flood of dense oil started heading toward Vancouver Island?

Harold Elworthy, chairman of the board of Island Tug & Barge, Ltd., says the English are attacking it the right way.

"But there are so many 'ifs' in this thing that I wouldn't want to get into a controversy."

Flying Lights

A display of floating objects over Victoria Wednesday sent a young man running all the way home, scared.

The young man was standing on top of Mount Tolmie with several other people when he saw them. He said he hadn't believed what he read in the paper about flying objects and had purposely gone up the mountain to see for himself. He added that his name not be used.

The first appeared over Gordon Head at 7:35 p.m. and was flashing red as it flew over the city and disappeared over the Strait of Juan de Fuca. Ten minutes later he saw a series of orange flashes that "lit the Victoria sky."

About a half hour later he saw a lighted object come from behind Mount Douglas flashing red and green lights. When the object hovered, the objects stopped flashing and became a steady red.

What really scared him was an object that flew over Mount Tolmie at an estimated 400 feet. It made no noise and was oval-shaped.

There were other craft, he said, but he didn't stay around to see them.

"I was scared. I ran all the way home," he said breathlessly into the phone.

Ready to Go Where's Chester? —Hanoi

LONDON (CP) — Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, indicated Thursday that North Vietnam has inquired about the whereabouts of Chester Ronning, Canadian diplomat who has carried Canadian messages to Hanoi in the past.

Martin said in an interview that Ronning, a Southeast Asia expert who now is retired, is ready to go to Hanoi immediately if there is any indication North Vietnam wants to talk about peace.

Martin said there has been no official reply from Hanoi to proposals for stopping the Vietnam war made by U Thant, United Nations secretary-general.

REPLY RECEIVED

He said North Vietnam probably would neither accept nor reject Thant's suggestions — at least for the present — but there had been an inquiry as to the whereabouts of Ronning.

A UN spokesman Wednesday night said Thant did receive a reply from Hanoi but declined to say what was in it. Diplomatic sources said Thursday that North Vietnam rejected Thant's proposals.

Ronning went to Hanoi with a Canadian proposal last year. Martin is here for discussions with Commonwealth leaders.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant "will continue his efforts" for peace in Vietnam, a UN spokesman said Wednesday.

The informant gave that reply at a briefing for correspondents.

Grenadier Robber A Woman

SEATTLE (UPI) — A frail young woman armed with a hand grenade robbed the Green Lake branch of the Seattle Trust and Savings Bank Thursday.

She escaped in a late model sedan with an undetermined amount of money.

Employees said the woman, about 21, showed a teller a hand grenade and said she also had a pistol in a shoulder holster.

Crisis Over Plot Topples Cabinet

Paraskovopoulos

ATHENS (UPI) — Premier John Paraskovopoulos submitted the resignation of his caretaker government to King Constantine Thursday in a political crisis stemming from an abortive plot to overthrow the monarchy.

The king was expected to ask the leader of the conservative National Radical Union party (ERE), Panayiotis Canelopoulos, to form a new government.

The government was brought to the brink of collapse when the ERE said it would withdraw its support from Paraskovopoulos if the government approved an electoral law amendment that would grant immunity to former premier George Papandreu and his son Andreas for any links with the Aspida (Shield) organization that allegedly plotted to overthrow the king.

London Betting On Michener

OTTAWA (CP) — It seems certain now that Prime Minister Pearson will announce the name of Canada's new governor-general next Tuesday in the Commons.

At a news conference Tuesday, he indicated an announcement next week on a successor to Gen. George Vanier, who died March 5 after 7½ years in the vice-regal post.

Roland Michener, now Canadian high commissioner to India, emerged in diplomatic speculation in London Thursday night as most likely to become Canada's next governor-general.

One experienced diplomatic informant said "nothing can be 100-per-cent sure in this world" but it would be a good bet that the former speaker of the House of Commons will be named.

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Mother Elizabeth was presented with British Columbia's Order of the Dogwood Thursday by the B.C. agent-general in London, Earle C. Westwood.

Fire Ruins Landmark

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — A hotel fire in the heart of this mountain resort community early today threatened an adjacent theatre, forced evacuation of another hotel, and prompted fears it might spread to an entire business block.

The fire destroyed a three-story, 40-unit frame wing of the Mount Royal Hotel.

Danish Expert Doubts U.K. Efforts Oil Fight Handled 'in Panic'

LANDSKRONA, Sweden (UPI) — A Danish oil expert charged Thursday Britain "panicked" in its handling of the tanker Torrey Canyon oil disaster and that the oil will come back to haunt it for many years. (See also Page 6.)

Paul Jodehl, manager of an oil control firm here, said Britain panicked and used ill-advised methods to destroy the 118,000 tons of oil surging towards its resort beaches. The British "are being led to use chemicals that merely bind the oil for a month or two," he said. "They are trying to destroy the oil through emulsion with oil-plus-paraffin products, but it is an impossible task."

Jodehl said the emulsion will drain off in a short time and the oil will appear once again with "tremendous consequences" for many years to come for the fishing life and fauna.

He also doubted that the three-day bombardment of the tanker had succeeded in burning out the remaining oil "because of the lack of oxygen inside the tanker."

Jodehl, who has acted as an oil-control consultant for the Finnish government, offered his own method to fight the drifting oil off the British coastline.

"First encircle the oil with bars and rafters. Then either spray the masses and wait for the oil to sink to the bottom as small sand grains with no damage caused to the fish or fauna. Or tow the oil into suitable waters and then pump it into carriers and take it away."

The newspaper said the spokesman was "unwilling to answer the question whether the Chinese Embassy in Jakarta was behind the trouble."

MiG FIELD BOMBED

By TED SELL

WASHINGTON (LAT) — American planes have attacked Communist North Vietnam's newest jet fighter airfield in the first raid of its kind in the war.

According to information available here, the attack nine days ago by a Navy A-6 Intruder struck a new field at Bai Thuong, 80 miles southwest of Hanoi.

Intelligence officers estimated that in another week, the field would have been ready to receive a complement of Soviet-built MiG jet fighters.

So far, Communist airfields sheltering MiGs have been immune from U.S. attack under rules which most air force commanders consider overly restrictive. The Pentagon never has said why such fields have been off-limits.

CRATER FIELD

No MiGs were at the field when it was attacked. The raid was intended to crater the airfield before it was put to use.

U.S. planes have attacked small air strips throughout North Vietnam since air raids on the north started in 1965. In most cases, the raids hit dirt strips and fields which MiGs were not expected to use.

Bai Thuong was a brand new field, and apparently was intended from the first as MiG base.

'INTERESTING'

Pentagon officials declined to say the raid escalated of the U.S. air war. But officers described the move as "interesting" and indicated it should serve as a warning to Hanoi on basing MiGs at new fields.

Existing MiG fields cluster around the Hanoi and Haiphong areas. Use of Bai Thuong would have placed MiG interceptors at strategic points U.S. planes use in flying to North Vietnamese targets either from bases in Thailand or in northern South Vietnam.

'Take Beefs
To U.S.'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday that persons protesting the death and injury of children in Vietnam should take their complaints to the United States government.

The prime minister made the comment when greeted at Vancouver International Airport by half-dozen placards protesting the Vietnam war.

One sign read: "Pearson accomplice in genocide." The prime minister said these people "should ask them in Washington about that," referring to the genocide.

Mr. Pearson and his wife arrived in a government Jetstar from Calgary for a three-day Vancouver visit before going to Santa Barbara, Calif., where Mr. Pearson will receive an honorary degree of laws degree from the University of California.

California Governor Ronald Reagan was invited to the luncheon which will precede Mr. Pearson's convocation address. No official meeting between the prime minister and Governor Reagan has been arranged.

Businessmen Nabbed

Jakarta Chinese Held in Red Plot

JAKARTA (UPI) — Indonesian military authorities were reported Friday to have arrested several prominent Chinese businessmen on charges of financing the Communist underground and plotting to incite opposition to the government.

The army newspaper Armed Forces Daily quoted a spokesman for the Jakarta military garrison as saying that the unrest in East Java was apparently organized and financed from Jakarta, "possibly with aid from outside."

The newspaper said the spokesman was "unwilling to answer the question whether the Chinese Embassy in Jakarta was behind the trouble."

The Communist party in Indonesia was outlawed following the unsuccessful coup of 1965 which was reported to have had the backing of China.

TV Strike Spreading

From LAT

A strike against major television and radio networks spread Thursday as more unions stayed off the job or prepared to do so in observance of picket lines.

They included cameramen and engineers whose absence could further restrict live programming.

At the same time, two well-known TV newsmen faced expulsion from their union for defiance of picket lines.

Chet Huntley and Frank McGee, both of NBC, apparently were the only top network figures to cross picket lines of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

CBS newscaster Maury Green voiced the general resentment against Huntley. "Either Huntley is through as a newscaster or AFTRA is finished as far as newsmen go."

The union can expel Hunt-

ley for refusing to respect its picket lines. But expulsion from the union is not grounds for dismissing him from NBC.

Meantime, Herb Aller, head of the AFL-CIO Cameramen's Union in Los Angeles, said he will fly to New York for a meeting Sunday with Richard Walsh, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees, to "get full support for our brother unionists in this strike."

Aller said the cameramen's union, an IATSE affiliate, had a membership meeting Wednesday night, "and everyone
